GREAT ACTRESS GOES TO DEATH

PARIS, March 26.—Mme. Sarah Bernhardt is dead.

The "divine tragedienne's" death was announced at 8 p. m.

The great actress died at her home here today after a lingering illness. She clung grimly to life and continued to breathe for hours after doctors abandoned all hope. An infection of the kidneys of long standing was the cause of death.

Bernhardt was seventy-eight years old. Despite advice of physicians during the last year that all strenuous activities be given up, she insisted upon appearing whenever possible.

Several times during the winter months she suffered relapses and the end was considered inevitable.

By the exercise of her unconquerable will, Bernhardt struggled back from the door sill of death and asserted she would live many years yet, to die at last, like the great Moliere, upon the stage.

For more than sixty years Bernhardt had been before the public, admired by the world, courted by kings and princes in her young days, and in her vivid personality fairly typifying the spirit of her country.

Mme. Bernhardt was born in Paris October 23, 1845 and christened Rosine Bernard. Her father was a French Catholic, her mother a Dutch Jewess. Her early education was in a convent, and at the age of fifteen she entered the training school of the French stage, the Conservatoire. Her first professional appearance was at the Comedie Francaise, but having no great success she left the stage for a time.

Returning to her profession, however, Bernhardt scored marked success in numerous classical roles with the Comedie Francaise company. Her first triumph came in "Hernani," by Victor Hugo. It brought to her a personal letter of appreciation from the author. This was in 1875. Then barely thirty years old, Bernhardt had as her friends and suitors the reigning kings, nobles and princes of Europe. Her palatial home on the boulevard Pereire was said to have been a gift from Emperor Dom Pedro of Brazil.

One of Bernhardt's greatest successes was "Camille" and it was during the period of her most impressive triumphs that she revived "Camille" in 1883. Then followed journeys to the United States and England.

In 1893 Bernhardt was directress of the Renaissance, and at that time began appearing in the plays of Rostand. She appeared in "The Kings", "The Wife of Claude" and many others and scored success on success. Her glory constantly grew. She reigned as a queen.

In 1900 she created the role of "L'Aiglon" in the play of that name by Rostand. She was then fifty-five years old and startled the world by her performance of the role of a youth in his 'teens. She appeared as "Portia" in "The Merchant of Venice" and played other Shakespearean roles, such as Lady MacBeth and Ophelia, and just before the outbreak of the world war she startled the world by a remarkable performance of the role of Shylock.

It was soon after this that Bernhardt was forced to submit to the amputation of one leg. Since that time she has been forced to appear in more or less sedentary roles. In her last appearance in the United States, which was on the vaudeville stage, she appeared in "La Gloire." The role made it possible for her to remain sitting thruout the performance.

When the United States entered the war in 1917 Bernhardt was ill in a New York hospital. Marshal Joffre and other French leaders paid homage at her bedside. She was active in work of all kinds during the war.

Ambition Denied Her.

The ambition of the "divine tragedienne's" life was denied her, but in her dying moments the great roles she made famous came back to her, and in delirium she spoke the lines from "Camille" and "L'Aiglon" that thousands of her admirers know.

Bernhardt's passing at this time marked a final tragedy in her wonderful life, for she was penniless at the end and downstairs as she lay dying, the house was filled with garnish movie sets, lighted by calcium lights, and camera men came even on the day of death, insisting the film upon which she had been working must be completed despite her illness. Several times toward the end, when caffeine and camphor had been administered and she scarce could breathe or move, Bernhardt, with indomitable will, fought off death and struggled to rise, to go down stairs and work to earn money to pay debts.

A priest went to the house late today and administered the last sacrament.

Bernhardt was in great pain.

"O, I have had a long agony," she said once.

Her mental agony was as great as her physical. She was determined to live, "to get back into harness."

"Moliere (the actor) died in harness," she would repeat over and over.

The world has lost one of its most wonderful women of all time. Sorrowing French cabinet members paid last tributes to her. President Millerand, Premier Poincare and others telephoned repeatedly to inquire about Bernhardt's condition.

One ambition of the great tragedienne is to be fulfilled; one thing remained to her in her poverty besides the wealth of friends thruout the world. The little uninhabited island off the coast of Brettany she bought years ago to hold her tomb will be her last resting place—a shrine for all the world.

URGES THOMPSON NAMED

Governor Sweet Would Have Member of Trade Commission Succeed Samuel Nicholson.

DENVER, March 26.—Appointment of Houston Thompson, member of the federal trade commission, to succeed the late Samuel D. Nicholsin as United States senator from Colorado, was urged in a telegram received by Governor William E. Sweet from Woodrow Wilson today.

BREAKS AIRPLANE RECORD

Lieutenant Maughan Flying at Dayton Goes 234.24 Miles an Hour Over One Kilometer Course.

DAYTON, O., March 26.—Lieut. R. L. Maughan, unofficially broke the world's record for airplane speed this afternoon when he flew 234.24 miles an hour over a one kilometer course. The official record is that of Sadi Licointes, French aviator, 233.01 miles an hour.

ADVISES LESS WHEAT GROWN

John R. Mitchell, of Federal Reserve Board, Declares U. S. Cannot Export at Profit.

FARGO, N. D., March 26.—The United States cannot export wheat at a profit in competition with other wheat growing countries, John R. Mitchell, member of the federal reserve board, declared here today.

He recommended a 25 per cent reduction in wheat acreage in North Dakota at a conference of farmers and bankers.

Such a reduction, he said, would bring production down to a little less than consumption. It would cut the acreage by fifteen million, one million of which could be seeded to flax, he suggested.

FIREMAN KILLED IN WRECK

Three Other Trainmen Injured in Wisconsin When Passenger Train Crashes Into Burning Bridge.

MADISON, Wis., March 26.J — Edward Dailey, fireman, was killed and three other trainmen injured near here today when a Portage-Madison passenger train on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad crashed into a burning bridge.

TRAIL PROJECT IS ASSURED

Planned to Surface Antelope Highway With Clay This Spring.

PLAINVIEW, Neb., March 26.—The Antelope trail, running from Plainview, Neb., thru Brunswick to Orchard, will be surfaced this spring. S. Greenamyer, Brunswick, Neb., who went to Lincoln last week in behalf of the project, has brought back word that the work is practically assured. The federal government has approved of it and will furnish half of the money. The legislature has made the appropriations for road work and the only thing that will stop it is the governor's veto.

It is planned to surface the road with clay similar to the road running from Neligh to Clearwater. Survey for the road was made last fall and work will commence as soon as conditions are fit this spring. This stretch of road has long been the worst in the county and Mr. Greenamyer has made himself popular in this section by boosting the project.

WRITER SCORES WOMEN WHO WASTE HUSBANDS' MONEY

MRS. WILSON WOODROW

"A woman who will spend her husband's money on extravagant finery is just as much an embezzler as a man who will spend his partner's money without consulting him." With which statement Mrs. Wilson Woodrow, charming hostess and brilliant writer, takes her place alongside Justice McCardle of London, whose drastic decision scored Mrs. J. V. Nash for extravagance in dress. "I would like to see a uniform costume for every woman providing, of course"—and Mrs. Woodrow laughed as she revealed herself a true woman—"providing, of course, I could pick my own uniform."

HEIRS SUE LODGE FOR $3,000

Allege Satisfactory Settlement on Policy Never Made.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., March 26.—Heirs of the late Mardalene Lembke have sued the Fraternal Aid Union lodge for $3,000, the amount of a policy carried on the life of Mrs. Lembke, who died nearly a year ago, and for whose death a satisfactory settlement has never been made Mrs Lembke was a member of the lodge when it changed to the old line plan, and the value of her policy was computed on the payments made in premiums, leaving settlement amounts less than the $3,000 originally insured for. The company tendered checks for $1,899 to the beneficiaries, under provisions of the new schedule, and these were refused and have been in the hands of the secretary of the local lodge for more than six months

Battle Creek—Country roads in this part of the state are very bad due to the recent moisture and which was followed by a thaw. It will be some time before the highways are in good condition for motoring. Highway patrolmen are working in several districts with drags and floats.

MUTILATED BODY OF YOUNG BOY IS FOUND

Godfrey Dronoci of Milwaukee Wrapped in Girl's Red Skirt With Penknife in His Heart.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 26.—The mutilated body of Godfrey Dronoci fifteen, was found in a vacant lot on the outskirts of Milwaukee today. The lad's body was wrapped only in a girl's red skirt. A penknife was piercing the victim's heart. Both hands and feet were bound with a heavy rope. Authorities were able to find no clues to the murderer.

SENIORS SETTLE DRESS QUESTION

Norfolk Girls Vote for Cap and Gown for Graduation.

NORFOLK, Neb., March 26.—There won't be any hard feelings about the matter of dress among the fair graduates of the Norfolk high school this year. While the members of the board of education were planning to discuss that question, the girls of the senior class called a meeting all their own and voluntarily settled the question.

Said the leader of the '23 grade, "Let's cut expenses this year. Let's make it caps and gowns, they cost only $2.50 each, and let's hold down to one dress costing not more than $25."

The ayes had it and when the news was flashed to the board, the old timers among the school fathers declared the flappers of today had common sense, anyway.

GRAND ARMY MEN CONCERNED.

Adjutant Bross, G. A. R. headquarters at the state house said Monday:

"Our G. A. R. comrades have been deeply interested in the account of the accident to their esteemed comrade, M. A. Hancock, color bearer of our Farragut Post No. 25, and his wife. Comrade Hancock was a member of company F of the famous Thirty-sixth Iowa infantry and served thruout the war. This regiment made a brilliant record at Mark Mills, where out of 500 who went into battle nearly 200 were killed or wounded. In the absence of the colonel of the regiment the command fell upon Lt. Col. F M. Drake upon several critical occasions. He was severely wounded and bore the effects of it until his dying day. He was prominent in civil life for many years after the war and Drake university at Des Moines bears his name.

"Comrade Hancock has been for several years a resident of Lincoln and a prominent member of Farragut post. All who have watched the processions of Nebraska Grand Army men will remember his gallant bearing as he bore the colors at the head of the department. Many of his comrades called at the sanitarium Sunday afternoon and will watch with interest the recovery of Comrade Hancock and his wife."

Mr. Bross further said that Grand Army men hoped to see the man responsible for the injury of Mr. Hancock prosecuted and justice done.

Political Battle at Norfolk.

NORFOLK, Neb., March 26.—A "reform" and "conservative" battle is on in Norfolk by two political factions who are centering their activities about the mayoralty results in the regular city election which takes place April 3, next.

George W. Phelps, republican candidate has as his platform the regulation of pool halls and soft drink parlors, "elimination of bootlegging and baudy houses," at the same time favoring Sunday movies and Sunday baseball. He is backed by the so-called "reform" element.

Mayor John Friday, eight times mayor of Norfolk, is re-nominated by the democratic party and declares his platform is a "conservative" one. He is backed by the more liberal element. The mayor in reply to his opponent's publicly announced platform, declares it is impossible to eliminate bootlegging in Norfolk.

BRIEF STATE NEWS.

Nebraska City—Carl Seeman of Unadilla was caught under the board of a corn fodder dragging machine on which he was working in the field some weeks ago, and sustained a compound fracture of his right leg. The injuries may make him a cripple for life, according to word from the Lincoln hospital where he is receiving treatment. The bones refuse to knit, and an operation removing them may be necessary.

Franklin—At the caucus held here Monday night B W. Harrington and Earl Austin were nominated as councilmen of the first ward In the second ward W. S Yates and Arthur Edehill were nominated for the third term and William Courtin and J. H Naden for the one year vacancy.

He Was Suspicious.

The club insurance agent had persuaded Rastus to undergo a physical examination All went well until the doctor stared to fill out the personal question blank.

"Do you use wine, spirits or malt liquors?" he asked.

"Ah knowed it! Ah knowed it!" exclaimed Rastus, jumping for the door clutching his collar and tie. "Ah 'spected all de time you wuz prohibition agents!"—Chicago News

LEE HERDMAN TESTIFIES

Joined Colonial Venture in April, 1919—Tells of Incorporation of Firm.

OMAHA. March 26.—Lee Herdman, testifying here today, said he joined the Colonial venture on April 21, 1919, and was bought out by Walter L. Stickel, Kearney, on June 10, 1919, for $10,000.

Over persistent objections Hardman testified that the Colonial company was incorporated on April 21, 1919, with the following present:

Willard V. Mathews, who was to receive $1,000,000 worth of stock; Ralph Sunderland, who was said at the time to hold 17 per cent of the land; Walter L. Stickel and Thomas H. Matters, each said to have then held 30 per cent of the property; W. George, former state treasurer, who was to receive $100.000 of stock and be made treasurer of the company; Lucien B. Fuller, Kansas City, and James B Ellison, Charleston, W. Va., who said they had examined the land, found it worth $100 an acre and knew the title was good, and Charles Rudolph, Chicago, who, with the two Gregory women of Chicago were said to own the remainder of the 150,000 acres of land.

"Did you see any money put up at the time of incorporation?" Prosecutor Dorsey asked

"I did not," Herdman replied, "but I understood there had been some money paid previous to that time."

NO CIGARETS FOR DEPUTIES

Oklahoma Sheriff Declares His Assistants Mus. Be Gun-Toting He-Men With Cob Pipes.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okl., March 26.—Cigaret smoking by twelve deputy sheriffs was banned by Sheriff Tom Cavanar of Oklahoma county today, because it is "too effeminate."

"My deputies must be gun-toting hemen with a shooting iron on each hip and a corncob pipe in their mouths," he decreed.

DAVID CAUSES FAMILY SPLIT

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 26—Brother testified against brother today in the $80,000 damage suit brought by John W. Hansel, against Benjamin F. Purnell, "king" of the House of David, religious cult at Benton Harbor, Mich.

Quinto Rosetta, brother-in-law of Mrs Esther Hansel, and brother of Emil Rosetta, today took the stand for the defense. He testified that a promise of a "division of the spoils" was made him by Mrs. Hansel in October, 1921.

"The money proposition sounded pretty good to me and we talked it over," he testified

He added that later he received a letter from his brother Emil, a witness for the Hansels, stating that "if I did not fall in line with them they would see that I did."

He further testified that if it came to a showdown Mrs. Hansel told him she would swear that Benjamin had been intimate with her. He said he asked her if this were true and she replied "no."

Rosetta was employed as a night watchman for some time at Shiloh, Benjamin's home in the colony.

VICTORY FOR THE DEFENSE

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., March 26.—Judge White today overruled efforts of prosecution attorneys in the Foster trial to disqualify Charles E. Ruthenberg, a defense witness, and strike out testimony he had already given.

C. W. Gore, chief state's attorney, declared Ruthenberg was incompetent to testify in Foster's behalf because he was indicted jointly with Foster.

Attorney Frank P. Walsh, representing Foster, argued that Gore's objection was raised too late and even if the state had grounds upon which to base its objection it had waived all rights to protest by waiting until much of the testimony had been presented. The court upheld Walsh's argument.

JOHN S. TRAIL IS DEAD

Homesteaded in Otoe County in Early Fifties and Went Thru All Pioneer Difficulties.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., March 26.—John S. Trail, eighty-seven, a resident of this community for sixty-seven years, all of which time he spent on his farm southeast of town which he homesteaded in the early fifties, being a real pioneer and going thru two grasshopper plagues and several drouths, died at his home of old age, after an illness of seven weeks. A fine pine grove on the home place, that is a land mark in that section and can be seen for miles, is a monument to his industry. During the grasshopper plague in the seventies, he carefully wrapped each of the then young trees so the grasshoppers, that destroyed everything else green in the county, could not get at them.

FOUR LOST IN A FIRE

Charred Body of Man Found in Ruins of New York Apartment Adds to Total.

NEW YORK, March 26. — The charred body of a man was found in the ruins of a burned apartment house today, bringing the death toll to four. Investigation led authorities to believe the careless tossing of a lighted cigaret in a waste basket started the flames.

Return to War Prices.

NEBRASKA CITY, March 26.—Barbers in Nebraska City have returned to the war prices for their work, and have served notice that after April 1, the price of a shave will be 20 cents, and a hair cut 40 cents, with shampoos, massages and other work increased in price, accordingly. Everybarber in town has signed the agreement, and the scale is the same every place. For a time, some of the barbers have been doing work at the price of 50 cents for hair cut and shave, but they claim everything they use including wages paid journeymen, has advanced until the increased prices are now necessary.

GOULD REPORTED TO BE NEAR DEATH

GEORGE J. GOULD

American Financier Is Seriously Ill With Pneumonia at Menton, France.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., March 26.—George J. Gould, ill with pneumonia at his Menton, France, villa, is sinking rapidly and there is little hope for recovery, according to a cablegram received here today by Mrs. Carol Wainwright, his sister.

COLLECTING ON THE I. O. U.'S

GENERAL MITCHELL AND PURSUIT 'PLANE HE FLEW 171.7 MILES AN HOUR

America now has the fastest military pursuit 'plane in the world. This 'plane flown at Mitchel Field, Long Island, by Brigadier General William Mitchell, assistant chief, U. S army air service, made 171.7 miles an hour. It was built to army regulations by the Curtiss company in co-operation with the air services of the army and navy. When the trial trip was made the 'plane, armed with two machine guns, carried more than half a ton of ammunition. General Mitchell says that because of maneuvrability, speed, and ability to leave the ground within 90 seconds—the three prime essentials of a fighting 'plane—this new all metal plane is the most efficient aerial "warship" in the world.

FLOOD DANGER PASSES AWAY

Gorge Breaks on Nebraska Side and Water Crashes Thru.

RIVER FALLING FOOT AN HOUR

Decatur, Neb., Imperilled by the Swirling Waters.

Altho Ice Jam Has Passed Out River Is Eating Way Toward Town—Thousands of Acres Under Water.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., March 26.—Huge ice gorges in the Missouri river are moving out slowly and the flood danger that has lurked here for nearly a week was passed today.

After the Missouri river had risen slowly at Onawa, Ia., last night and early today to twelve feet in as many hours, the gorge broke on the Nebraska side near Decatur, Neb., and the river crashed its way thru the narrow opening. Since then, the river has fallen one foot an hour.

Decatur reports however, pointed to the fact that the onslaught of the river was tearing away the eighty-foot bank and eating its way toward the town. An elevator is located about 100 feet from the river and a number of houses stand 125 feet from the river bank. Workmen were moving houses there this morning.

The ice gorge at Onawa passed out about 9:30 a. m. today. Unless the unforseen develops, the river will gradually recede to normalcy, the weather bureau reported today.

Hundreds of dead carcasses of livestock are floating down the river and thousands of acres of rich farming land in Iowa and Nebraska are still under six feet of water where the flood waters have settled in the low spots. It is believed that farming will be useless there this year owing to great deposits of driftwood and silt.

Telephone and telegraph companies were sending out repair crews from Sioux City today to repair partially impaired wire service. Moderate temperatures insure permanent relief from any more ice gorges forming here.

BURLINGTON OFFICE ROBBED

Lone Highwayman Gets Nearly $70 From the Night Operator at York Depot.

The Burlington depot ticket office at York was held up and robbed by a lone highwayman who netted $69.55 as a result of his efforts. The robbery took place at 1:30 a. m. Sunday.

Night Operator Williams was on duty and two other men were in his office at the time. The highwayman, wearing a handkerchief over his eyes entered and lined the men up at the point of a gun.

The robber forced the night operator to open the cash drawer from which he took the till. Then he ordered the operator to open the safe but the operator did not have the combination and could not obey the command. The robber ordered those inside to lie down on the floor and not to move for ten minutes.

On leaving the depot the operator saw a man in the waiting room. He was O. C. May, a passenger, asleep on the benches. The robber awakened him, drove him into the ticket office at the muzzle of his gun, ordered him to lie down also, and backed out. That was the last seen of the bandit. The alarm was soon given and county officers and railroad special police are at work on the case.

GERMANS SLAY A CORPORAL

Another French Soldier Is Victim of Teutons, According to Reports From Wetter.

BERLIN, March 26.—Another French soldier has been killed in the Ruhr by Germans, according to reports from Wetter today, which state a corporal of the occupying army was slain.

A French officer was attacked by seven unidentified men at Neunkirchen in the Sarre valley and was severely beaten, according to reports here.

In retaliation the French have ordered restaurants closed in the town and forbidden public meetings.

At Frankenthal, where a French proclamation was destroyed, curfew has been ordered for three days.

FLAYS THE GARY DEFENSE

Indianapolis Judge Declares It Shows Lack of Organization and Seeks to Force Speed.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 26.—Federal Judge Ferdinand Geiger lost patience today with what he termed "the lack of organization of the defense" in the Gary booze case. He sought to speed up attorneys for Mayor Roswell Johnson of Gary and other officials and individuals indicted.

The jury called the lawyers to arrange their testimony so there will be no further delay in presenting defense testimony.

The trial is expected to reach the jury during the latter part of this week.

THIRD DENIAL FOR DR. CARR

BRYAN POLITICAL LIEUTENANT SCRATCHED OFF SLATE.

Despite the Efforts of Democrat of Claims Committee, Bill of Long Standing Again Is Disallowed.

Dr. E. Arhtur Carr, one of the political lieutenants of Governor Bryan, has been thrice denied by a Nebraska legislature. His claim for $420 for stenographic services while he was connected with the state department of health, was thrown out when the general claims bill was under consideration in house committee of the whole Monday morning.

Representative Hyde, another democrat who presumably is close to the governor, made a strong effort to put the claim thru. It was omitted when the bill was prepared tho the committee had passed favorably upon it. Mr. Hyde presented it in the form of an amendment The vote on roll call was 32 for and 39 against. Chairman Vance of the claims committee voted against it. Representatives Gould and Essam, also of the committee and holdover members, voted with the chairman. Dennis was the only member of the Lancaster delegation to vote for the claim. He is one of two democrats from this county. Representative Jacoby, the other democratic member of the delegation, voted in the negative.

The claim was turned down by the 1919 legislature. Two years ago, Dr. Carr was given permission to sue the state. He started suit but withdrew the action when told by the judge he had better ask the legislature. After failing to put over his amendment. Representative Hyde turned against his own committee at several turns. He wanted to strike out the claim of $54.50 in favor of Dr. J. A. Tamisea for examining 109 army recruits at fifty cents a head. The claimant was called into the service and sent to France before he had opportunity to press the claim. Mr. Hyde failed to procure a second to his motion to strike and it was withdrawn.

The house struck out the item of $500 in favor of E. R. Sizer in settlement of a claim dating back more than thirty years. He purchased a claim and has never had much luck with it.

Considerable opposition was voiced to the paying of premiums on bonds of the lieutenant governor and with a deputy state treasurer. There was an attempt even to disallow the $5,000 in payment of the state treasurer's $1,000,000 bond. It was discovered that the item of $360 for the premium of the deputy state treasurer is too high to cover the $10,000 bond. Dr. Whitehead dug up the statutes to prove that a mistake had been made. He also presented first hand information to the effect that $72 will cover the cost. This item was reduced accordingly. The state will pay $95 for the lieutenant governor and the state treasurer's premium as per custom.

County sheriffs are allowed 75 cents a day for feeding state prisoners with no extras. Chairman Vance said that these officers asked for all the way from 65 cents to $1.05 a day. Some wanted extra for jailor fees and one asked for $365 for water, light and heat.

USE SALVAGE FOR PRISON

HOUSE DIRECTS DESTINY OF PARTS OF OLD CAPITOL.

Board of Control Told to Use Them for Building Additional Facilities for Restraining Prisoners.

So far as the house of representatives is concerned, the fate of the material now composing the state capitol is determined. It will be hauled down to the state penitentiary and there used for making rooms for gents who break what the lawmakers have been moulding between its present walls.

Several plans have been discussed, but this one seems to have been most favored. This is covered in H. R. 175, advanced to third reading, with the redoubtable Mr. Keck in the chair and doing a fine job of making the lazily inclined members work Monday morning. The bill directs that when the present capitol is torn down, the salvage shall be used on the prison grounds as the board of control may direct.

S. F. 175 had a stormy passage, but it got thru. It is an innocent little bill intended to keep the Fremont city council out of jail or from impoverishing itself paying fines for contempt of court. The city has been dumping its sewage into Rawhide creek and the courts have told it that it must quit it. The council has no money to deal otherwise with the sewage, and this bill proposed to give it power to vote bonds for doing the work by a two-thirds vote, without asking the people to approve.

Mr. Harrington saw in the bill, which provided that it apply to cities of between 5,000 and 12,000, a possibility that University Place might be included. Others pronounced it a dangerous bill, and Mr. Staats was a real busy person until the bill was fixed up so as to secure the approval of the house. The amendments apply the provisions to cities between 8,000 and 12,000 population.

H. R. 490 was advanced. It merely changes the election laws to fill the new conditions created by the constitution, which permits only full-fledged citizens to use the ballot.

H. R. 382 was also advanced. It proposes to change the wording of the probate laws where are prescribed the publication of notices to the effect that wills have been filed. The present law definitely fixes these publications as the "next preceding" three weeks to hearing. As changed the publication may be for three weeks previous.

Mr. Thatcher tried to get the law changed so that arbitrary county judges cannot say in just what newspaper the legal notice shall appear. He wanted the petitioned to do the choosing, but the legal sharps in the house professed great alarm over the change, and it was voted down.

Another change in the law carried in the bill says that all claims of heirship are barred within a year even if the legal notice was improperly published or had some other defect.

S. F. 133 was put on the general file by the railroad committee. It aims to provide additional watering facilities for stockyards.

ANNUAL INSPECTION TRIP

University Engineers Visit Important Projects in Lincoln, Omaha and Crete.

About 150 senior and junior engineering students of the University of Nebraska are spending the spring vacation period in the annual inspection trip. The Lincoln trip was made Saturday, covering the work of the new capitol, the Lincoln Traction company power station, the Burlington's Havelock shops and the city disposal plant. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be spent in Omaha and suburbs. On April 7 this group will inspect the Blue River Power company's power stations along that river and also the Crete mills.

BIG MASONIC GIFT.

SYDNEY, N. S. W. (By Mail).—The largest Masonic gift in the history of the world, it is believed, was announced here. Charles Kolling, an immensely wealthy Mason, gave 100,000 pounds (almost $500,000) to the Freemason's grand lodge of New South Wales. The money is to be used for the erection and endowment of a Masonic school for the fatherless sons of Australian and New Zealand Masons.

Give Furniture and Clothing If Not Cash

Twenty-two families living in the Henkle block were made homeless in the fire that destroyed that building. Nearly all lost all they had because they did not have time to get belongings out. Few carried insurance. Some have been assisted but others have not and need help.

Their plight calls for the assistance of every charitably-disposed person able to give. Nearly $1,000 in cash has been contributed thru The Journal, but if you cannot give money give clothing or furniture. Many of these have but slender resources. Those who are employed have no surplus that would enable them to re-establish a home. A number are elderly persons. Several families have asked that others needier than they be taken care of first. A few have resources sufficient.

Here are some of the things that will be helpful, but it is only a partial list: Clothing, beds, chairs, dishes, bed clothing, rugs, towels, kitchen utensils, dresses, underwear, night gowns, petticoats, quilts, blankets, stockings, shoes, stoves, carpets, gas plates. If you have anything of this character to contribute, telephone The Journal and it will tell you where the goods may be delivered or make arrangements for their delivery.

PENSION BILL UP ONE STEP

GIVES CITY OF LINCOLN FULL CONTROL AS TO PAY.

Provides, However, That Firemen on Pension or in Employ of City Shall Come Under Present Benefits.

H. R. 616, measure eliminating the city of Lincoln from the provisions of the firemen's pension act, was advanced to third reading in house committee of the whole Monday. It has been amended to meet objections of firemen now in the employ of the city or on pension. Men now on the retired list at half pay will continue to receive pension. Nor does the bill deny the pension right to men now inthe employ of the city as firemen. It does apply to those who enter the employ of the city in such capacity in the future.

Representative Wilson of Lancaster, introducer of the bill, explained that when the present law was enacted Lincoln did not have a home rule charter. The city, he said, desires to make such provision as it deems advisable in regard to pensions.

H. R. 296, Egger-JacobyDennis bill providing that Lancaster county commissioners shall displace members of the board of sanitary trustees without additional pay, was advanced 43 to 12.

"I oppose the bill," said Mr. Wilson. "It is wrong in principle. The sanitary district consists of Lincoln and her suburbs. It is the same as a drainage district. The principal purposes for creation of the board were to straighten Salt Creek and build a sewage disposal plant, now under construction. Shall you take from the people living within the district control of the affairs of the district?"

He said that the only saving will be the $400 a year salaries to members of the board. It is just as sound, he said, to dismiss the city council and say that the county commissioners will conduct the city's business.

"How much is Lawyer Peterson getting?" asked Mr. Vance.

"I do not know what Lawyer Peterson receives," said Wilson.

Representative Dennis said that of the 86,000 citizens of Lancaster county approximately 75,000 live in Lincoln and the several suburbs. The city and suburbs, he said, pay 80 per cent of the taxes. Mr. Jacoby referred to the sanitary board as a "skin game."

"It's the biggest graft ever pulled," he said.

Other bills advanced to third reading:

H. R. 316, by Barbour—Providing a legal means of recording assignments of school leases.

H. R. 390, by Yochum of Saunders and Mitchell: Removes technicality in way of bond issue which technically now prevents groups of farmers right to organize district and buy electricity. Mr. Yochum said that 50 men, farmers and residents of the small town of Ithaca, are waiting for this bill. Another group of 75 farmers near Scribner are ready to organize.

STATE WILL COMPLETE CASE

Prosecuting Attorneys in Second Herrin Trial Believe Case Is "Airtight."

MARION, Ill., March 26.—The state's case in trial of the six men charged with murder in connection with the Herrin massacre, probably will be completed today.

Leading prosecution attorneys today expressed confidence they had built up an "air tight" case against the six defendants.

"We are satisfied with the evidence we have presented in this trial," Assistant Attorney General C. W. Middlekauff declared. "We have gone further toward establishing the fact of a conspiracy that we did in the first trial. Our case is practically air tight and I am confident no amount of defense testimony can damage the case."

NO JURY TAMPERING.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., March 26.—Judge Charles White, presiding in the trial of William Z. Foster, charged with violating the Michigan syndicalist act, today cleared both sides in the case from any stigma of jury tamering.

Addressing the jurors the court declared he had investigated reports presented to the judge, prosecution attorneys and the jury in a private conference Friday and found that neither side had anything to do with the matter.

GOVERNOR IS NOT PLEASED

STATE TREASURER TRIES TO SET HIS MIND AT REST.

Mr. Robinson Says Soldier Fund Need Not Be Reappropriated and It Will All Be Invested.

Governor Bryan raised a question as a member of the board of educational lands and funds at a meeting of that board Monday which he believes is important. As is customary this board met behind closed doors to discuss the investment of funds under its control. The board is trustee for the $2,000,000 appropriated by the legislature of 1921, the interest upon which is to be paid for the relief of needy Nebraska soldiers of the world war.

The board decided to purchase $113,000 of bonds which had become available. This brings the total investment to a little over $1,000,000. Governor Bryan said the $2,000,000 which is raised by taxation was appropriated out of the general fund. Of that amount $50,000 became available as soon as the act took effect. The governor contends that while this was appropriated it is not all invested and that unless $800,000 of it is not invested between now and July 1 the amount uninvested and on hand will lapse. He does not care to have such an appropriation charged to his administration. He urges the board to try to find investments for whatever funds there are now on hand or may be received between now and July 1. It is also said that the governor expressed some wonder about where the $800,000 was to come from with the general fund already overdrawn.

State Treasurer Robinson said the governor is worrying over something that has not happened and will not happen.

"There will be no need of a reappropriation," said the treasurer. "The taxes levied to raise this fund will be coming in in May and June and if it is not enough there will be that time for other money in the general fund. The governor need not worry, the money will be invested, if the board can find securities for sale and there will be no reappropriation to prevent any of the soldier fund from lapsing back into the general fund."

JOE BURNS OFF TICKET

ASKS CITY CLERK TO TAKE HIS NAME FROM THE LIST.

Says the City Has a Candidate in the Race Who Is the Equal of R. B. Howell of Omaha.

Age and the desire to not take on heavy responsibilities and strenuous labor are given as reasons by Joe Burns, in a letter written to City Clerk Berg Monday, for withdrawing from the city ticket. He asks that his name be taken off the list. His withdrawal leaves nineteen candidates in the city primary for commissioner, three of this number seeking the office of mayor.

Mr. Burns says he is personally interested in the water and light department, and that he finds a young man on the list of candidates who has all the qualifications for the place and who bids fair to become the equal of R. B. Howell of Omaha in the management of such an institution as the city's water and light department. He says he refers to Allen P. Cowgill, a braska and of West Point. Because graduate of the University of Ne- Mr. Cowgill is in the race mr. Burns feels free to request the withdrawal of his name from the ticket.

Before the withdrawal of Mr. Burns there was much speculation concerning what would happen should both Burns and Cowgill, both seeking the water and light job, be nominated. The Bryan forces were said to be behind both Burns and Cowgill, as well as Lord and Dennis. The action of Mr. Burns simplifies that situation at least.

BAD CHECK ARTIST CAUGHT

Harry Blumenthal aPssed Four Bogus Checks Saturday, Was Nabbed on Fifth.

Harry Blumenthal of New York and Havelock faces prosecution by the state for alleged uttering of no fund checks, as a result of his activity in Lincoln Saturday. He was caught at Rudge & Guenzel's in his fifth attempt to pass a bad check, and is being detained at police headquarters while the county attorney draws up a complaint against him.

Blumenthal purchased a $12 bag at Rudge & Guenzel's store Saturday and offered a check for $17 on a local bank. The address he gave as his residence did not look good to the firm, already inclined to be suspicious because of the unusual number of bad checks that have been floated of late weeks, and a telephone call to the bank established the fact that Blumenthal had no account there. He acceded readily, however, to a request that he go over to the bank with Ernest Guenzel and identify himself as a customer there, asking only a minute to go and get his wife. He started off but Mr. Guenzel followed him, soon saw that he was not looking for any wife, and gave the alarm. Blumenthal was arrested within three minutes of the time he tendered the check.

Blumenthal claims to be the son of a wealthy garage proprietor in New York city, but does not give a very clear account of how he got to Havelock, or why. He seems to have made friends, as several persons called at the store in an effort to do something for him. They did not give their names.

JURY'S BRIBE MONEY WAS IN LAUNDRY BAG

Alleged Tampering With Governor Small's Jury Probed At Waukegan.

FUNDS SMUGGLED INTO COURT

Governor Is Not Involved, Prosecutor Has Announced.

SON IS SUMMONED BEFORE JURY

Five or Six Indictments to Be Asked in Case of Those Who Are Said to Have Interfered With Justice.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., March 26.—Money, hidden in a laundry bag, was smuggled into the jury room in the trial of Gov. Len Small, the first witness in the grand jury investigation declared today, it was learned from sources close to the probe.

The grand jury is hearing evidence of reports of alleged tampering with the jury which acquitted the executive of charges of embezzling large sums of state funds. Altho five or six indictments will be asked A. V. Smith, prosecutor announced, the governor is personally involved in no way.

The governor's son, Leslie Small, is among the witnesses summoned. Governor Small was exonerated a year ago of charges of conspiracy to defraud the state of large sums of money.

RUNAWAY LADS SENT HOME

Chief Johnstone Receives Railroad Fare From Anxious Parents of Two Boys.

Harry Wallace, sixteen year old runaway lad who was taken into custody Sunday at the Burlington station by Officer Nichols, will be sent to his home in Sioux City late Monday. Chief of Police Johnstone received word from the boy's father, Ivan Wallace, Monday morning that the [illegible] recently left his home [illegible] Neill, fourteen years old, another runaway from Mound City, Mo., Monday, to his etaoin shrdl cmfwyy will be started on a journey to his home, according to Chief Johnstone. The lad's father, R. W. Neill, wired railroad fare to the chief Monday morning. Young Neill annd another lad, Albert Field, fifteen years old, were taken into custody Friday morning at the Burlington stations by Officer Nichols. They have been held at the detention home.

DENIES CHARGE OF RECKLESS DRIVING

H. L. Crooks Who Ran Into Mr. and Mrs. Hancock Saturday Evening Arraigned and Released on Bond.

H. L. Crooks, twenty-nine years old, 645 South Fourteenth, who ran into and injured Mr. nd Mrs. M. A. Hancock at Sixteenth and N streets Saturday evening, entered a plea of innocence when arraigned before Justice of Peace W. T. Stevens Monday forenoon. A complaint filed by the county attorney charges Mr. Crooks with reckless driving and failure to stop after an accident. The case will be tried at 9 a. m. March 30. Mr. Crooks was released on $500 bond with George W. Klein as surety.

The complaint alleges that the defendant endangered the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Hancock. Both are recovering, according to reports from the Lincoln sanitarium. One of Mr. Hancock's fingers was amputated and his left arm is badly fractured. Mrs. Hancock, seventy-nine years old, was badly bruised. Mr. Hancock is eighty years old. The two were returning from a walk at 7:45 p. m. Saturday and were crossing Sixteenth street when hit by the speeding auto. Mr. Hancock was thrown about fifteen feet and Mrs. Hancock was dragged across the street car tracks. The driver did not stop.

SEERESS PICKS JOHNSON.

MIAMI, Fla., March 26.—A negro seeress who lives near Palm Beach picks Hiram Johnson of California as the next republican presidential nominee. At least she picks a man who so closely resembles Johnson physically that her prophetic vision is generally accepted as applying to him.

This seeress, who has a wide local reputation for locating lost and mislaid property and foretelling future events, was asked recently by a Southern Republican whether Mr. Harding would have a second term.

"No," she replied, "at the last minute he will refuse to run again, and a heavy set, nervous, fighting sort of man from the west will get it. This man is getting ready right now to fight Harding for it."

COUNTY FACES ANOTHER SUIT

Coca Cola Bottling Works Claims Defendant's Negligence Caused East O Street Wreck.

Trial of the case of the Coca Cola Bottling works against Lancaster county was begun Monday morning before District Judge Stewart. The plaintiff asks $3,210.89 damages against the county, alleging that a bridge eight miles east of Lincoln was hot wide enough, and that a discrepancy between the width of the bridge and the width of the road, together with the necessity for a Coca Cola driver to pass another car, caused the driver to run into the bridge head and smash his truck. The damages asked for included damage to the auto, and to the cargo of the truck.

SAYS GOODHUE NOT CLEARED

JOHNSON DENIES CAPITOL ARCHITECT IS VINDICATED.

Asserts Capitol Commission Findings Do Not Exonerate Him From Any Charges Placed on File.

LINCOLN, March 26.—To the Editor of The Nebraska State Journal, Lincoln, Neb.—Dear Sir: I read an editorial in your paper this morning in regard to the charges that I have made against Bertram G. Goodhue.

You state that, "It is now the part of Nebraskans who love justice to make felt the state's appreciation of Bertram G. Goodhue, the architect to whom we owe the prospect of a state capitol of international note as a work of art that has been subjected to much suffering." You further state, "The unanimous findings of the capitol commission including old and new members alike, are an absolute vindication of Mr. Goodhue," that "his assailants have been refuted, his enemies silenced." You make these statements and call upon the people of the state to love, and appreciate Mr. Goodhue at a time when the Nebraska legislature is still investigating the charges that I have made.

You state that the findings of the capitol commission were a complete vindication of Mr. Goodhue. I wish to refer you to the charges that I have made and call your attention to the fact that these charges do not say that Mr. Goodhue was guilty of receiving money directly or indirectly on the contracts. The fact that the commission found that Mr. Goodhue had not received money directly or indirectly on contracts does not vindicate him from the charges that I have made.

If you will read the findings that you say were signed by all the members of the capitol commission, old and new, you will see that we all agreed that the stone which Mr. Goodhue accepted did not conform to the specifications as to texture and color; and by reading the evidence, you will see that the difference in texture and color are the principal elements governing the cost of Bedford stone; and by reading the findings, you wil further see that the contractors are required to reduce their prices on stone in proportion to the three grades of stone that are being furnished which will result in a saving to the people of the state of Nebraska of $45,000 on the entire building; and in addition to that, the commission has instructed a committee to designate all of the stone in the wall now laid that is not proper to be left in the structure; and these stone are to be removed and all similar stone are hereafter to be rejected.

The contract and specifications show that Mr. Goodhue requested the very best grade of stone obtainable; and the findings of the capitol commission show that he deliberately requested and accepted stone that was a great deal cheaper to furnish; and for that reason the contractors were

COMMUNISTS BROKEN UP

SO SAYS DEFENSE WITNESS AT THE FOSTER TRIAL.

Party Passed Out of Existence Following Convention at Bridgeman, Mich., Ruthenberg Declares.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., March 26.—Dissolution of the communist party ended organized efforts to bring about a political and industrial revolution in America by use of force, Charles E. Ruthenberg, first defense witness in the William Z. Foster trial, declared today.

Following the convention at Bridgeman, Mich., resulting in the indictment of Foster and others for alleged violation of the state syndicalist act, Ruthenberg declared the communist party passed out of existence.

The workers' party of America, which succeeded the communist organization, does not advocate violence, the witness stated.

In cross-examination of Ruthenberg, the prosecution will seek to show that both the workers' party and the trades union educational league are associated with the Russian communist movement and use tactics advocated by Lenin and Trotsky.

Foster was active in the organization and promotion of the trades union educational league. Ruthenberg, on resuming the stand at the opening of court today, continued his explanation to the jury of the socialistic and communistic movements. His testimony was expected to occupy most of the day.

The mild spring weather has resulted in cutting down spectators from St. Joseph and Benton Harbor, who crowded the court room in opening days of the trial. The jurors, mostly farmers, are also getting uneasy and are plainly anxious to dispose of the case early. The defense plans to present only a few witnesses and the jury will start its deliberations before the end of the week.

THIRTY WITNESSES ON HAND

Opening of Grand Jury Probe Into Tampering With Governor Small's Jury at Waukegan.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., March 26.—Thirty witnesses were on hand here today for the opening of the grand jury investigation into reports of tampering with the jury which acquitted Gov. Len Small.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith will ask the grand jury to return four or five indictments after he has presented evidence gathered in a two months' investigation.

Among the witnesses summoned are the governor's son, Leslie Small; his son-in-law, A. E. English, and his legal representative, Werner Schroeder.

The governor was exonerated a year ago of charges of conspiracy to defraud the state of large sums of money.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

The morning Journal had a double column front page head line, "Spain Is to Blame, the disaster to the Maine due to an outside explosion," and the plot began to thicken.

Dr. J. C. Schurman, president of Cornell university, was a guest of the Lincoln educational institutions, speaking at high school and university.

Louis A. Westerman was named as one of the new postoffice clerks to be allowed Postmaster Bushnell.

The cakewalk was a favorite of the period and were often given in blackface.

Dr. E. E. Fife had returned from Boise City, Ida., where he went to look over the field, and decided to accept a call from the first Presbyterian church.

Company B, university cadets, held its third annual dance at the Lincoln Light Infantry armory. The committee was composed of F. L. Rain, N. M. Davidson, H. P. Lau, A. D. Harman and H. P. Smith.

The engagement is announced of Amalie Ebert, only daughter of the president of Germany, and Dr. Wilhelm Jaenecke, an attache of the foreign office.

ATTACKED IN SLEEP BY HAMMER WOMAN

Washington Attorney's Wife Awakens to Find Woman With Weapon Striking at Her.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Attacked in her sleep by a woman with a hammer, Mrs. Elizabeth O'Brien, wife of a prominent attorney, was in a serious condition at a local hospital today.

Mrs. O'Brien was awakened by a sharp blow on the head. Crouching at the foot of her bed, she says, was a woman, hammer in hand. Mrs. O'Brien, only stunned by the first blow of the hammer, attempted to run from the bedroom but the unknown woman attacked her again and a second blow on the head caused her to fall to the floor. The hammer caught in her hair.

Screams of Mrs. O'Brien and her daughter aroused neighbors but the mysterious woman assailant escaped. So far the police have found no trace of her.

At the hospital it was said Mrs. O'Brien has a severe fracture of the skull. Friends of the family can assign no reason for the attempted murder. Mrs. O'Brien's husband is at Scranton, Pa.

Thin? Run-down? Sure Way to Get Right Weight

Increase Your Red-Blood-Cells. That's the Sure Way! S. S. S. Builds Blood-Cells; This Means Strength!

Do you know why insurance companies refuse to insure a great many men because they are under weight? Simply because to be under weight often proves low fighting-power in the body. It often means you are minus nerve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus health, minus energy, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become plus. That's why S. S. S., since 1826, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Hollow cheeks fill out. You stop being a calamity-looker. You inspire confidence. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S. S. S. will build them. Ladies and gentlemen, a peaky, bony face doesn't make you look very important or pretty, does it? Take S. S. S. It contains only pure vegetable medicinal ingredients. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size bottle is the more economical.

SOUTH IS TALKING FORD.

MIAMI, Fla., (By Mail).—Henry Ford is the man the south is talking about in connection with the presidential campaign of 1924. Ford's name is almost certain to be mentioned by any southerner these days if the conversation turns to politics. He has been so thoroly advertised to the south in connection with the Muscle Shoals nitrate project and in other ways, that many amateur political prophets below the Mason-Dixon line already are predicting that he will get a nomination.

POISON LIQUOR KILLS FIVE

Philadelphia Federal Authorities and Police Combine Forces to Run Down Liquid Death.

PHILADELPHIA, March 26.—Following five deaths from poison liquor, and twelve lesser cases of alcoholism over the week end, federal authorities and city police today combined forces to run down the source of the "liquid death."

Three investigations were under way today. One is being conducted by the police headed by Captain Souder and Lieuteannt Belshaw; another by feedral authorities headed by William J. McClure, prohibition group head, and a third by the coroner's office.

Police said today that one of the victims of the poison liquor gave several addresses where the stuff was sold. The liquor is sold at 10 cents a drink, three drinks for a quarter, according to the police.

FAIR WEATHER FOR EASTER

Weather Expert for the Chicago Tribune Believes Sun and Moon Are Favorable.

CHICAGO, March 26.—The sun and moon are favorable to fair weather for Easter, in the opinion of Selby Maxwell, weather expert for the Chicago Tribune.

He said it probably would be nice unless the storm cycle, which has brought cold, blustering, stormy weather every Sunday for the last five weeks, interferes.

The cycle, Maxwell pointed out, contains four extra hours beyond the "quota for the week, so the storm has been falling a little later each succeeding Sunday. It broke about 3 p. m. yesterday, which indicates that if Dame Nature moves according to schedule, the sun will smile on the Easter parade.

However, Maxwell ends his prognostications with a question mark.

THREE WOMEN DIE IN APARTMENT BLAZE

One Hundred Families Driven to Streets by Fire Which Sweeps Thru New York Apartment House.

NEW YORK March 26.—Three women are killed in a spectacular fire here early thru the Princeton apartments in the theatrical district here today.

The bodies of a mother and daughter were found clinging together in a small room on one of the upper stories. Another woman was killed when she leaped from a window.

The dead:

MRS MARY SITZLER, sixty-five, actress who played a leading role in "The Gold Diggers."

MISS EMILY SITZLER, thirty-five, her daughter.

ANNIE FRIES, twenty-five.

The blaze swept thru the old building like a flash, destroying the stairways and isolating those on the upper floors.

Women, roused from their beds, ran screaming to the windows while firemen hoisted aerial ladders and carried some to safety.

The ladders would not reach to the two top floors.

Miss Fries, in hysteria, leaped from the window of her room and was killed on the pavement below.

In the face of great hazards firemen dashed up the burning staircases and carried some to safety. The smoke was so dense about the upper floors that the rescuers working on the outside of the building had to be directed by shouts of those perched on ladders and in adjoining buildings above the smoke screen.

One hundred families were driven to the streets by the blaze, which spread thru the Fifty-seventh street building with remarkable rapidity, cutting off the escape of the victims.

Several persons leaped from upper windows as the fire drove them back from stairways.

Fire broke out shortly before 6 a. m. on the sixth floor of the building and in a short time had completely gutted the two top floors.

The West Side Y. M. C. A., next door to the ruined apartment house, was imperilled by the fire.

Thrilling rescues from upper stories marked the progress of fire fighters in their attack upon the stubborn blaze. Women were carried down fire escapes and others were assisted from lower floors to the street.

PATH OF LIGHT ACROSS U. S. TO GUIDE NIGHT FLYERS WITH AIR MAIL

OMAHA—A continuous pathway of light extending from New York to San Francisco will someday soon mark the route of the transcontinental air mail service, according to Jack Knight, of Omaha, recently proclaimed "Ace of the Air Mail Pilots" for his spectacular night flying in order to deliver government mail on time.

"The proposed night route from Chicago to Cheyenne will be light all the way, and from the air at night it will be as distinct and easy to follow as the Lincoln highway for an autoist," says Knight.

Since he entered the air mail service June 25, 1919, Knight has flown 146,729 miles. E. G. Leonbardt of Cleveland, his friend, was "runner-up" with 142,750 miles.

GETTING ON RIGHT BASIS.

The community chest as proposed by the men who have the matter in charge will prove a great relief to those who have supported the charitable institutions of the city if everyone concerned will cooperate. It will also be of great assistance to the institutions for which the funds are raised. It will dignify the work—free them from much trying criticism and worry.

Subscribers to the budget must not expect any great material saving in dollars the first year. Greater efficiency in the work undertaken should justify the movement until readjustment can be made where it is found practicable. I am very much interested in the success of the Community Chest, and believe Lincoln citizens will respond generously when they understand what the movement means to both contributors and to those charged with the responsibility of conducting the charitable work of the city.

ASKS LIQUOR FOR HOSPITALS

Archbishop Messmer of Milwaukee Urges That $125,000 Worth Be Saved From Lake.

MILWAUKEE, March 26.—In a letter made public today, Archbishop Sebastian G. Messmer asked that the large amount of whisky confiscated by the government and ordered dumped into Lake Michigan be saved and apportioned among hospitals here for medical purposes.

By order of Judge F. A. Geiger, the whisky, which at present bootleg prices, is valued at more than $125,000 is to be poured into the lake by government officials some time this week.

In his letter the archbishop says that distribution of this confiscated stock to hospitals would be a "true work of charity to those institutions who carry a great burden and sacrifice."

The "stock" was seized by the government October 28, 1921 when William Duzold was indicted by the federal grand jury.

OVERCOAT SAVES LIVES

Used as Life Net It Catches Two Women Who Jumped From Blazing Building.

CHICAGO March 26.—A police man's overcoat used as a life net, saved the lives of two women who jumped from windows of a blazing apartment building here today.

Mrs. Agnes Barber, seventy, leaped from a third floor window into the coat, held by four officers. The coat broke the force of the fall and saved her life. However she fractured a hip and was slightly injured otherwise.

Mrs. H. J. Mitchell, holding her two-year-old daughter in her arms, leaped into the improvised life net from a second story window. Neither was injured.

The fire had cut off other avenues of escape and smoke filled the room.

BEAUTY PROOF JURY AWARDS WIFE $5,000

Mrs. Gladys Fox Had Sued Millionaire Father-in-Law for $250,000 for Breaking Up Her Home.

CHICAGO, March 26.—A "beauty proof" jury today awarded Mrs Gladys Graham Fox only $5,000 damages in her suit against her millionaire father-in-law, Albert Fuchs, who she accused of breaking up her home.

Mrs. Fox, who asked for $250,000 dissatisfied with the small award, immediately asked for a new trial "by a new judge and a new jury," which was granted by Judge Scanlan.

The jurors, picked carefully by attorneys for the wealthy real estate dealer for their ability to withstand the appeal of an attractive woman, decided Fuchs had caused an estrangement between Mrs. Fox and her husband. After twenty hours of deliberation, however, they agreed she was entitled to only one-fiftieth of the amount she asked.

All jurors declared Mrs. Fox's beauty in no way affected their decisions.

"I guess they weren't influenced greatly by the evidence either," was Mrs. Fox's only comment.

She was plainly disappointed by the small judgment.

The twelve men claimed they were immune to the comeliness of any woman. Their average age was just under forty, and all but one was married.

Mrs. Fox claimed her father-in-law objected to her because she was not of German ancestry.

Her husband changed his name from Fuchs to Fox during the world war.

Mrs. Fox's attorneys pictured her happy married life until, they alleged, the father-in-law interfered.

"Their home was regular garden of Eden until Fuchs, the serpent appeared," Attorney Bangs, counsel for Mrs. Fox, declared.

KNOW MODEL'S MURDERER

District Atorney's Office Has Established Blackmail as Motive for King Slaying.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Broadway's latest murder tragedy following its startling denouement that turned the pitiless spotlight of publicity upon J. Kearsley Mitchell, Philadelphia millionaire, moved swiftly today toward a climax—arrest of the murderer.

The slayer of Dorothy King, artist's model found chloroformed to death March 15, is known to the police and the district attorney's office. The motive has been established; he sought to have the girl assist in blackmailing her "angel", Mitchell, the aristocrat, for "a very large sum of money." When she refused he went to her apartment and killed her in securing possession of a letter written by the millionaire, said to be couched in endearing terms, on which the blackmail was to have been based.

The police are about to spring the trap. Assistant District Attorney Pecora admitted arrest might come today.

Complete revelation of the blackmail plot, of which the millionaire professed himself in ignorance, was made over the week end by Ella Bradford, the slain girl's maid. She, too, was asked to help in the plot, one told Pecora.

From the story of the maid, and that told by Mitchell and the latter's attorney, Jackson, who accompanied him to Miss King's apartment the night of the murder, Pecora believes he has been able to reconstruct exactly what happened.

Miss King, Mitchell and Jackson dined together the evening of March 14 and went together to the girl's flat, Jackson leaving within half an hour. Mitchell remained until 2 a. m. when, he says, he left. The blackmailer, about to become a murderer, was hiding nearby. He crept into the model's apartment, leaped upon her as she lay in bed, smothered her screams, twisted her arm brutally until she was unable to struggle and then held chloroform to her nostrils, until she was unconscious.

He ransacked the apartment, found the letter he sought and fled.

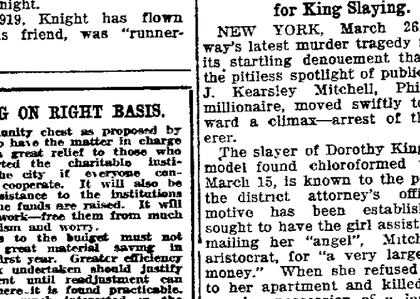

Mitchell, millionaire society leader, clubman, remained in ignorance of the death of his friend Dorothy until next day.

The murderer is under surveillance; but the police apparently desire to secure material witnesses from among his companions in the blackmail scheme before taking him into custody.

NO WILD PARTIES IN FILM.

LOS ANGELES, March 26.—What girl wouldn't be thrilled at suddenly being selected to be a movie star, and not only that, but to have the leading part in a picture called "Hollywood?" That's how Hope Drown feels about it. She has been selected from comparative obscurity in amateur dramatics to play the leading part in a picture which is to depict Hollywood life on the screen.

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

HAIL TO THE BANKING BILL

SENATE GIVE IT UNDIVIDED ATTENTION TUESDAY.

Its Amendments Have Approval of Banking Committee But Governor Bryan Has Not Committed Himself

This week promises to be a momentous one for all concerned in the banking laws of the state, and nearly every one admits some concern in that subject. The senate has made H. R. 272, and the senate standing committee amendments a special order for consideration Tuesday forenoon. The house amendments to the code law will be drifting into the senate this week, but they are considered of small importance compared with banking legislation.

Many members of the senate are of the opinion the state government can wiggle along regardless of what is done to the departments under the governor known as the code department. If the worst comes to worst and nothing is done whatever why there will be a governor at the head of the code, with power to hire and fire everybody employed, and with power under the budget provision of the code law to say whether or not any department of the state government, from the supreme court, university and normal schools, any or all state officers and every expending agency of the state shall spend any of the fund the legislature and the governor may give them a start with. No other state in the union has such power vested in its governor under a budget law. Whether appropriations granted by the legislature and approved by the governor can later be whittled down by the edict of the governor is constitutional has not been decided by the courts.

See case of regents of the University vs. Governor McKelvie et al, withdrawn from the docket of the supreme court.

What is to become of the banking law and not what is to become of the code law is uppermost in the minds of a majority of the legislators, but there is not so much politics in this subject, tho some had been injected into it, as there is in the so called code rumpus.

Not a Fair Weather Law.

Many years ago when I. L. Albert of Columbus, attorney at law, wrote the guaranty law for the legislature to pass, he thought he was doing a pretty good job, tho he was given a comparatively small fee out of the state treasury for his pains. Mr. Albert realized then that the law was not drawn for fair financial weather. He endeavored to make it withstand storm and stress. The stress is now getting to be such that bankers are clamoring for an improvement. The financiers of the house of representatives passed H. R. 272 with that in view. Since then it has been intimated that Governor Bryan will veto the house bill. The senate and friends of the bill have buckled down to the task of devising something a little different, in the hope of producing a bill that will meet the favor of all concerned, particularly the bankers and the governor.

The governor served notice that there must not be a divided power between the state banking department of which he expects to be the head, and a group of bankers to be chosen under the law as an advisory board to the banking department. He was also understood to say that by the enternals the guaranty fund belongs to the state as a trust fund for depositors and must not be used for any other purpose.

A sub-committee of the senate committee on banking believes it has solved the matter of the use of the guaranty fund. This committee is said to have answered the ancient question, what guarantees the guarantee, by providing and additional guarantee for the guarantee in the form of a conservation fund.

None of the guaranty fund is to be used to bolster weak banks, but a new fund call the bankers' conservation fund by an assessment upon state banks, this new fund to be used in emergencies to loan to failing banks, and if this loan is finally lost it is to be paid the same as any other deposit, out of the guaranty fund. Whether this is not really using the guaranty fund to help weak banks may be one of the questions that will arise.

One difference between the conservation fund and the guaranty fund is that the conservation fund up to a certain point can be held by the banks and used as an asset instead of a liability. This special conservation fund shall never be more than one third of one per cent of the average daily deposits of a bank. Before dividends are paid this assessment must be charged off the books of the bank.

With this new fund created and other safeguards the senate committee feels safe in reducing the maximum special assessment for the guaranty fund from 1 per cent per year to one half of 1 per cent a year after 1923, without in the least injuring the guaranty law.

The conservation fund is to be drawn upon by the state department and turned over to the bankers' advisory commission to loan to a failing bank, with the consent of the stockholders and directors.

Bankers' Commission.

The commission has little power except in the matter of failing banks. It is to take charge of failing banks thru an agent and proceed to run it as a going concern by making a deposit in it from the conservation fund. At any time within one year the owners of the bank [illegible] pay back this loan and assume the management if its financial condition justifies such a transfer or the commission may ask permission of the court to sell the bank as a going concern to the highest bidder. If the commission is [illegible] able to keep the bank going it may then turn it back to the department of trade and commerce who shall appoint a receiver. The loan from the conservation fund then becomes payable from the guaranty fund and in this way all state banks [illegible] to the money deposited will be repaid.

The senate amendments provide for a commission of seven. The governor is to appoint two of three nominated by each of the banking groups or districts. The secretary of the department of banking is the seventh member. With going banks this commission has no authority except in an advisory capacity. It has access only to such records in the state department as pertain to receiverships.

Time certificates of deposit in failed banks are to be paid only on date of maturity out of the guaranty fund. All certificates of deposit are non negotiable. This is intended to stop traffic in certificates of deposit with traders and dealers and stock salesmen.

Taxes Upon Banks.

The senate committee on revenue will hold S. F. 330 until Monday afternoon for a hearing asked for by C. E. Burnham of Norfolk, representing national bankers, who will present E. M. Morsman of Omaha as attorney to speak against its passage. This bill legalizes the assessment of state and national banks for the year 1922. They were assessed the same as for many years but bankers contended they were entitled to have their property assessed as intangible property is now assessed, at one-fourth the rate taxed against intangible property. The bill is said to be in conformity with an act of congress which gives states the right to assess banks the same as other moneyed capital and also gives states the right to assess capital as intangible property if it is not capital employed in competition with banks. Governor Bryan had the bill introduced at the request of the senate committee.

The senate committee on revenue will hold a hearing Thursday evening at half past 7 o'clock in the senate chamber on H. R. 111, a bill repealing the taxation of property as intangible and to repeal the new revenue law applying to building and loan associations.

CHAMPION WALKER COMES TO LINCOLN

Dan O'Leary Visits Capital City to Gain Governor's Signature — Won Pedestrian Title in 1878.

Dan O'Leary who says he is eighty-two years old, and one of the most famous walkers in the country, arrived in Lincoln Saturday afternoon. Mr. O'Leary's fame extends not only over this country but also thruout Europe and Australia. To date, he says he has covered approximately 286,000 miles in walking matches and exhibitions in the United States, England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, France, Australia and Canada. He is now visiting the capital of every state in the union to secure a collection of the signatures of all the governors, and the seals of all the states and capital cities.

Mr. O'Leary came to Lincoln from Kansas City, Mo., by railroad and after a stay of three or four days will go to Des Moines, Ia. He was in Lincoln in 1886, when he won a 200 mile walking contest held in a skating rink that was located at Sixteenth and O streets. He says that he won the title of champion pedestrian of the world when he traversed 540 1-4 miles in six days at a big international meet held in London in 1878.

He states that he will end his walking career when he has reached the total of 300,000 miles. This he estimates will be in 1924. As his last public walking exhibition, he expects to make a round trip of the Panama Canal, a distance of a hundred miles in twenty four consecutive hours. He says he has celebrated every birthday since 1874 by walking a hundred miles.

Mr O'Leary while not a strict vegetarian, has little use for meat. However he eats at least a half pound of butter every day. He uses it in his coffee in his soup, oatmeal, and in fact in practically everything he eats. He appears as hale and hearty as the average man of fifty and walks with the spring and ease of the seasoned athlete. He attributes his unusual health and strength to constant walking and physical exercise.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

Word was received Sunday by O. O. Thomas of the death of an old time friend [illegible] V. Caswell, who died at Long Beach, Cal., on March 19. He [illegible] good health up [illegible] went to the house where he was living alone and [illegible] dead in bed. He had lived by himself since the death of Mrs. Caswell a year ago. He had been in Long Beach for fifteen years. Mrs. W. [illegible] Kleinebecker of Lincoln is a granddaughter.

NO DIVIDENDS WILL BE PAID

NEBRASKA HOTEL CO. STOCKHOLDERS WIPED OUT.

Bids for Property Not Accepted and Assets Believed Entirely Consumed by Fees and Various Court Costs.

When the Nebraska Hotel company properties were sold by the receiver two years ago it was estimated that the stockholders of the Nebraska Building and Investment company would receive between 20 and 30 per cent of their holdings in the final settlement.

But the supreme court reversed the work of Judge Morning who had ordered the receivership and the settlement was interrupted by a long period of litigation and turmoil within the corporation. This culminated last November in throwing the concern into bankruptcy by the federal court. Referee D. H. McClanahan took the case and early in December appointed F. B. Baylor as trustee, with instructions to dispose of the properties and divide the proceeds, first to the creditors and then to the stockholders.

Stockholders Grow Impatient.

The trustee opened offices in the Lincoln hotel, employed attorneys, appraisers, clerks, and special agents and proceeded to take a complete inventory of all of the property. He wished to secure physical possession of the hotels but this was denied on Mr. Eppley's appeal to the higher court. Mr. Eppley made an offer of about $900,000 a few weeks ago, but this was not accepted because Mr Baylor was assured that better bids would be received. These had not appeared up to the close of the week, and it was admitted by the trustee and also by President Thomas of the hotel companies that the outlook has become blue for the stockholders. If the only bid received up to this time is accepted it will barely cover the claims of the creditors and the expenses of the trustee. If costs continue to pile up it is probable that even the creditors will not receive their claims in full.

Costs in the Case.

It is impossible to say at this time what the cost of the trusteeship ordered by the federal court will amount to. The compensation of Mr. Baylor and the attorneys will be fixed by the court. Three firms have been engaged for different sorts of service but only one of these, Johnson, Moorehead and Rine of Omaha, is in the case continuously. Three appraisers have gone over the properties, and three more will serve at each of the places outside Lincoln, Scottsbluff, Glen Rock, Wyo., and Kansas City, where this sort of work is to be done. The office manager has served for only a month. One stenographer at $20 a week and a bookkeeper at $125 a month have been serving for about four months. The men making the inventory have numbered three at each hotel.

The pay of the trustee will be based on the amount of money handled. It cannot be accurately foretold for that reason. The costs of the trusteeship are estimated by President Thomas in the neighborhood of $50,000. Mr. Baylor did not wish to make any estimate, but offered no objection to this figure.

VETERAN IS NINETY-EIGHT

JOHN R. TAYLOR OF HAVELOCK NEARING CENTURY MARK.

Remembers Vividly Experiences in Libby Prison—Was Crony of John Fitzgerald.

Tuesday, March 27, will mark the ninety-eighth birthday anniversary of John R. Taylor of Havelock, and his friends say he bids fair to pass the century mark with colors flying. Altho no longer extremely active, Mr. Taylor retains possession of his faculties in a high degree, his memory being especially good. He talks readily and is very much bored if anyone intimates that his memory might be failing him. He is a great stickler for regular hours for eating and sleeping, and attributed his longevity largely to regular habits of living.

Mr. Taylor was born in Whittlesey, England, and came to this country at the age of fourteen, making Pittsburgh, Pa., his home for the next seventeen years. After graduating from high school he took up railroading, and worked in different states until he reached Wisconsin, where he lived for many years. At Prairie du Chien he married Miss Sara Lacan in 1856, and their four sons were born on their farm in Juneau county.

When the civil war broke out, Mr Taylor was one of the first in his community to enter the union forces, enlisting in Company D, Forty-fourth Wisconsin infantry, with which he served four years and three months, receiving an honorable discharge at the end of that time. Among the most vivid of his recollections is the seven months he spent in Libby prison. There he saw many a fine young man, driven desperate by the indescribably filthy, horrible conditions, walk deliberately over the dead line so that the marksman's bullets might set them free.

For seven years after the war, Mr Taylor farmed his Wisconsin place, and then he was struck with Horace Greeley's idea and came overland to Nebraska, bringing his wife and four boys in a prairie schooner. The family settled in Plattsmouth and lived there until Mr Taylor's great crony, John Fitzgerald, the railroad builder and pioneer, put him on his Greenwood farm as foreman. Mr Taylor superintended the operation of the 11[illegible] acre farmstead for ten years. [illegible] north of Lincoln adjoining Col. F. M. Woods' place. [illegible] over the relative worth to the farmer of the horse and the cow took place in the little country schoolhouse near by, Mr. Taylor as champion of the horse, going down to defeat before Colonel Woods.

When the burden of years grew too heavy, Mr. Taylor moved to Havelock to live with one of his sons. His wife was totally blind for fourteen years, and he tended her all day long until her death twelve years ago. He was an active member in Farragut post, G. A. R., until a few years ago, and has always been interested in civic affairs. Besides his two sons, John C., of Havelock and Robert L., of Holyoke, Colo., Mr. Taylor has nine grandsons and eleven granddaughters, and eleven great grandchildren.

SEE OVER TWENTY BIRDS

Seven Bruner Bird Club Members Hike to Salt Lake Saturday Morning.

Twenty-two varieties of birds were observed by seven members of the Bruner bird club Saturday morning on a hike to Salt lake. The hike was not a regular one of the club, since the weather had been too unpleasant.

Ducks were plentiful and included bald pates, a new gind for the year. Others seen were mallards, green winged teals, lesser scaup ducks, pin tails and snow geese. The geese were abundant. Few Canada geese have been reported here this spring, but a number of the white-fronted variety have been seen on the lake lately.

Five of the seven hikers walked around the lake, a distance of six or seven miles, with the turnings and side-journeys counted. The rest of the list which they saw included cardinal, chickadee, robin, flicker, crow, western meadoylark, an eastern meadowlark prairie horned lark, short eared owl, red winged blackbird, hairy and down woodpeckers, slate colored junco and marsh hawk.

No birds killed by the recent storms were found by the party, altho George Dayton, city commissioner, reports that within the week he has found many dead meadowlarks and robins. People within the city declare that some of the robins which were with them before the bad weather have now disappeared. Some robins and scores of meadowlarks stayed in the vicinity all winter and seemed little bothered by the weather.

The eastern meadowlark seen by the hikers was one of the few that have frequented the meadows of the lake for several years past, it is probable. Eastern meadowlarks are rather rare in this vicinity but are said to be getting more common every year. They are a little different in color than the common ones here, and have a much different song.

A wire from Neligh states that the vast flocks of migratory ducks and game birds visiting there have to be protected by federal game wardens from hunters who would like to taste out-of-season delicacies.

MERE MENTION.

Bert Saljas was arrested at 4:30 p. m. Sunday by Tom Carroll, state law enforcement officer, for using a paper number for his automobile and will appear in police court Monday.

Harry Wallace, an alleged vagrant, was arrested by Officer Nicholes at 2:45 p. m. Sunday. He is being held pending arrangements for holding police court Monday morning.

Harvey Kloepper, 1441 G street, was arrested at 4:30 p. m. Sunday by Chief of Police Johnstone for parking near a hydrant. Mr. Kloepper is to appear in police court Monday.

The Burlington weather report showed no storms over Nebraska Sunday night. The reports registered about the same temperature as in Lincoln, which was a little below freezing.

Charles Barker, peddler, thirty-three, alleged to have looked upon the wine when it was red, or possibly upon some white mule when it was white was taken to the police station at 4:45 p. m. Sunday by Officers Beals. Police court convenes at 9 a. m. Monday.

Cars driven by Elmer Petterson, 216 street, University Place and Irwin Forke, 440 North Twenty-seventh street collided at Twenty-second and Vine streets at 4:15 p. m. Sunday. Petterson was going south on Twenty-second and Forke was driving east on Vine when the accident occurred. The cars were damaged but neither driver was hurt.

Five roof fires caused by sparks from chimneys were reported Sunday. All were extinguished by fire fighters before much damage was done. The residences were those of Mrs. E. Maxson, 426 South Nineteenth; Dan Tutty, 1131 H, Martin Peterson, 2145 Vine street, Mr. Reisbig, 136 B street, and 1919 M street. A smoking fireplace at the home of G. H. Risser, 1745 C was also the cause of an alarm.

Frank White, who is colored, is one of the most accomodating men Officer Wilson, in charge of the desk, has met for some time. White came to the police station at 2:15 p. m. Sunday and has been there since. Officer Wilson says that white had been drinking. He was looking for a lady friend. Because of the proximity of a cell to the man with the alleged cargo, the presiding officer invited him to remain.

Dr. John R. Mott, general secretary of the international committee of the young men's Christian association and one of the foremost religious leaders of America is announced as the chief speaker at the thirty-seventh state convention of the young men's Christian associations of Nebraska to be held here. The state convention will open Monday evening April 2 with a banquet in the Scottish Rite temple, at which Doctor Mott will speak. Business sessions will occupy Tuesday forenoon. Doctor Mott will speak again Tuesday afternoon. Other prominent speakers will appear on the program.

Stocks of white potatoes in the hands of growers and dealers in the United States March 1 are reported at 171,555,000 bushels to the United States department of agriculture. Comparative figures with other years are not available. Of the total stocks 23,968,000 bushels are reported as unfit for food or seed [illegible] will be needed for food and seed on farms where grown, 27,278,000 bushels are held or consumption in local markets, and 59,[illegible] bushels are available for movement [illegible] other [illegible] the counties where produced [illegible] one half the quantity [illegible] potatoes [illegible] for shipment are in Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota.

MAYOR OF WICHITA SPEAKS AT MEETING

W. C. Coleman Addressing Y. M. C. A. Meeting Says Christian Principles Must Be Used in the Business World.

Mayor W. C. Coleman of Wichita, Kas., who is also president of the Coleman Lamp company, which has run without industrial trouble for twenty years, spoke to a large men's meeting Sunday afternoon in the Liberty theater under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

Christian principles in business were discussed. Besides being noted for his amiable relationship with his employes, Mr. Coleman is leader of the Bible teams of the First Baptist church in Wichita. Mayor Zehrung introduced the speaker. During the first part of the meeting the Bel Canto Men's chorus, under the leadership of Edith Lucille Robbins gave a well-received program. L. C. Oberlies led assembly singing.

"The greatest business text-book in the world today is the new testament," the speaker declared. "The ideal of Christ is becoming the ideal of civic organizations and business men. We have had a world of bloodshed because we failed to recognize these truths before."

Evils of organization, when men organize to fight, were dwelt upon.

"If we are teaching men to hate each other, gentlemen, we are learning of the devil. We must worship God, co-operate with men, and dominate things. If we do not dominate things, they will dominate us.

"Laborers of the country have more generally recognized, I believe, that organization must not be accomplished for fighting, than have some employers. It is because of our misuse of relationships with men that we have strikes and industrial troubles. The labor unions of today will not be successful unions of tomorrow if they try to fight their ways to settlements. That method is as old as Cain and Abel."

The difference between "Live and Let Live," and "Live and Help Live", the slogan of tomorrow, is simply that one is pagan and that the other is Christian. Liberty must now be interpreted, not as acting or using one's money in such a way that no one else is hurt, but in such a way that some one else is helped.

The task of modern business management is not to make articles, but to make men. Make the men, and they will make the business for you. All over the country, department heads are being chosen, not so much for their technical knowledge, as for their qualities of heart.

The program follows:

Soldier's Chorus from Faust, Gounod, Bel Canto Men's chorus.
Solo The Lord is My Light, Allitsen, Oscar Bennett.
The Rose of Sharon, Alier. Carry Me Back to Ole Virginny Bland; Who Did Swallow Jonah, Protheroe, Bel Canto Men's chorus.
Musical reading, The Builders, Seiler, Mark E. Johnson and chorus.
Hunting Song from Robin Hood, DeKoven, Ole Uncle Moon Scott. On the Sea, Buck, Bel Canto Men's chorus.
Edith Lucille Robbins, director; Edward Borgen pianist.
Assembly singing led by L. C. Oberlies, with Clare Anderson of the state reformatory at the piano.

WILD DUCKS ARE BACK HOME

MIGRATED SOUTH IN FALL AND RETURN WITH SPRING.

Two Flocks Belonging to Ranchers Near O'Neill Now Waddling Around Barnyards.

O'NEILL, Neb., March 25.—Tame wild ducks, or domesticated mallards, raised by ranchers of the lake regions of southern Holt county, and which regularly each fall migrate southward, returned to their home barnyards this week. Two large flocks belonging to Charles Martin, and Jack McKenna, ranchmen residing north of Chambers, got in Thursday, delayed a few days behind their schedule of the last three years by the stormy weather of last week and the early part of this, according to their owners.

Both of the flocks resumed the habits of the domestic ducks immediately upon their return and waddled around the feed yards and poultry houses quacking for food just as they used to do before the increasing percentage restored to them the ancient instinct of migrating away from the rigors of the winter seasons of the north. The Martin flock suffered one casualty, the loss of its leader, either on the trip southward last fall, or during the return this year, but the old drake apparently was the only one to fall before the gun of a hunter, as both flocks otherwise show a full count.

Both of the noted flocks of migrating domestic ducks are the results of the tame ducks of the ranchers mating with the drakes of the wild mallards which summer in this region, and which drive off the milder mannered domestic drakes during the mating seasons. The wild strain first began to show about five years ago, when all of the young raised by the domestic ducks began to fly, and three years ago it had attained such strength that the ducks all migrated for the winter. Since that time they regularly have done so, returning each year about March 20.

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS
Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife
Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Garage "Get-Away" Madge's Captors Contrived.

IF I had cherished any wild hopes that the unseen watcher in the coop-like office of Tony's garage would rush to my rescue when I tore the wrapping from my face, they were ruthlessly crushed. There was no sound or movement from the tiny room, and the only person affected was Tony. His jaw dropped in amazement as he saw the gag in my mouth, and a crafty look spread over his face.

"You no tell a me dees!" he gasped. "Stewed sees all right, moocha peoples stewed. But dees—dangerous—I no like."

The big man, with a muttered oath, had crushed the blanket over my face again. Now he crammed me through the door of the black limousine, and dumped me into Grace Draper's arms as if I had been a troublesome puppy.

"Shall I hand out some maple syrup?" he whispered to her as he did so. "Tony wants sweetening a bit. This hell-cat got the blanket down so far he saw the gag."

"Give him enough to shut him up," Grace Draper returned, "and hurry."

She took me in her arms again, crushing me in a vice-like grip which would have been torture at any other moment, and which I knew she meant as such. But I was too numb for suffering. Without the faintest scrap of reason I had felt that rescue for me lay behind the crack of the coop door. When there had been no sign, hope and feeling fled, temporarily, at least.

As might a person in a nightmare, I heard the rustle of bills, a gratified chuckle from Tony, a muttered word or two from the big man, and then—with George at the wheel—the big black limousine swept out of the garage and headed westward.

"Tony'll take care of the car?" Grace Draper asked, and her voice seemed to come from a great distance.

Grace Draper's Order.

"George, himself, won't know it in a few hours," the big man returned. "Trust Tony. He's about the best in the business, and the cream of the joke is that he's strictly honest as far as his legitimate repair business goes. He's a top-notcher in repair work, and his prices are always strictly fair, and he's a most obliging cuss. We wouldn't have dared go in there with this stunt in the summer-time—too many chance customers there. He can manage stolen cars because of a big barn in the rear into which he shoves them the minute they come in, and which can't be seen from the front, so ordinary customers suspect nothing—but we couldn't have pulled this."

"Have you anything on him, beside being a fence for stolen cars?" Grace Draper asked thoughtfully.

"And for bootleggers," the big man amended.

"I mean a killing job."

"No."

"He isn't absolutely safe, then," she said. "It needs the fear of the chair to keep a fellow like him in line. If it came to a question of his own skin, he'd turn us up in a second. I'd advise planting something on him if you expect to continue making use of him."

Her tone was as cool as if she were discussing the proper treatment for rose bugs, and an involuntary shiver shook me at this new evidence of her utter callousness. She gave a delighted little chuckle as she felt the movement of my body.

"Don't You Hear?"

"Shocked, sweetheart!" she drawled. "Well, you'd better get used to it! You'll have plenty to occupy your nervous system pretty—What's that?"

She broke off abruptly, clutching at the big man's arm.

"What's what?" he demanded, in evident amazement.

"Listen. Don't you hear anything?" The big man's face darkened.

"I—but it may not be."

"And again it may," Grace Draper snapped. "As George says, they're always in couples."

Because of the blanket swathing me, I had not before heard the sound which so evidently alarmed them, but now it came to me distinctly, the putt-putt of a motorcycle. The big man was peering out of the window back of us, and he spoke excitedly.

"Coming fast—well, I'll be cussed!"

"Can the trimmings and speak your piece," Grace Draper admonished irritably. "What's he doing?"

THE HOME KITCHEN

Here Are Dairy Dishes Both Cheap and Delicious

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON
The Authority on Home Cooking

SPRING is a good time to make the most of dairy dishes, because eggs, milk, cream and butter are at their best and are cheapest at this time.

It is claimed that milk contains the three elements most necessary to human well-being—lime, protein and vitamines. Since this is the case, it is poor economy to do without it or to quibble over the price we city dwellers have to pay to secure the best. Better do without some non-essential and make up the difference on milk. Though many persons do not like to drink milk, nearly every one likes milk dishes.

The question is frequently asked: "Does cooking destroy the nutritive property of milk?" It does not, although it does alter some of the effects on the system. For instance, liberal use of raw milk prevents scurvy, while boiled milk does not. But with the addition of fruits and grains to the diet any unhappy conditions created by cooked milk are easily dispelled. The least amount of milk a child should drink each day is a pint, and grown-ups, a third of a pint. Dietitians figure and favor as much more as can be afforded. Dairy products need never go to waste if the cook understands her business. Even a lively thunderstorm won't scare the cream into turning sour if you drop into it a pared carrot.

Milk Soup.

Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter and blend in three tablespoonfuls of flour. Add pepper, salt and a tablespoonful of grated onion. Cook, stirring the mixture until smooth. Then add a cupful of milk and cook gently one minute. Add two cupfuls of freshly mashed potatoes and the rest of the quart of milk. Heat to boiling point, stirring constantly. Then strain, add a little finely minced parsley, and serve.

Rice With Cheese Sauce.

Boil in the usual way one cupful of rice. Make a sauce of two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour stirred into it, then a cupful of rich scalded milk stirred in a little at a time. When smooth and as thick as desired, add a cupful of grated cheese—stirring until it is melted—and a beaten egg yolk. Arrange the rice on a dish and pour the sauce over it. This makes a good luncheon dish or to serve with chicken.

Cream Tapioca Pudding.

Soak four tablespoonfuls of pearl tapioca in cold water enough to cover. Drain and add it to two cupfuls of scalded milk. Cook in a double-boiler until the tapioca is clear and transparent. Add three tablespoonfuls of sugar to the tapioca with a quarter-teaspoonful of salt. Add the same amount of sugar to the beaten yolks of two eggs. Turn the hot mixture over the eggs, then return it to the double-boiler and cook until it thickens. Remove from the heat, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and fold in the stiffly-beaten egg whites. Then set to chill. This makes a delicious and inexpensive dessert.

French Coffee Ice Cream.

Make a pint of very strong coffee and strain it over the yolks of four well-beaten eggs. Add a cupful and a half of sugar and a half-saltspoonful of salt. Put into a double-boiler and cook until thickened. It must be hot enough to thicken, but not boil. Remove the instant it is thickened and cool. When cool, add a pint of heavy cream and two teaspoonfuls of vanilla. Then strain into the freezer. When almost frozen add the stiffly-beaten white of an egg.

Roman Pudding.

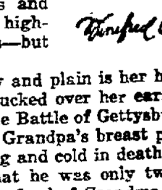

Mix the crumbs of four stale macaroons, six chopped preserved chestnuts, four tablespoonfuls of cake crumbs, the same amount of sugar, four egg yolks and whites of two eggs. Beat, then add a cupful and a half of cream, two teaspoonfuls of vanilla, a quarter-cupful each of chopped raisins and candied peel. Pour into a mould, dust with crumbs, set in water and bake. Unmould and serve cold with whipped cream.

PURE GOLD :: By Juanita Hamel

Copyright 1923 by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved

STRANGE and curious, wondrous indeed, must have been the emotion which shot through the heart of Pygmalion when his statue of Galatea came to life! But was it more strange or any more wonderful than the feeling that pulses through the heart of every man when the girl he has placed upon a pedestal—knowing her to be pure gold, as fine as she is lovely—first harkens to his "Love me" and he sees, trembling on her lips, the "yes" which is the one golden word of all to him!

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Curls, Love and Divorce
Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

WHEN she was married she wore her hair in curls—nice fluffy ones, all over her head—and she wore pretty little dresses with a swing to them, and all her hats were fetching and saucy.

She's been married for two years now, and her fetching hats are all put away in boxes in the darkest closet in the house, and her smart little frocks are put away, too, and she doesn't wear silk stockings and pretty slippers any more. She wears low-heeled, high-topped shoes—all this she could stand, she says—but what she cannot endure is the hair.

All her pretty curls have gone—slick, slimpsy and plain is her hair—all the curl carefully brushed out, and the hair tucked over her ears like Grandma's hair in the picture taken just before the Battle of Gettysburg.

To be sure, Grandma's picture was found in Grandpa's breast pocket when they picked him up on the battlefield, smiling and cold in death.

Grandpa—how strange it seems to think that he was only twenty-three when he smiled—and died! He seemed to be fond of Grandma, even if she did wear her hair parted in the middle and tucked behind her ears—but things were different in those days, says the wife who is suing for divorce.

"When It Comes to Curls"

"My husband is so mean I hate to think of him," declared this particular wife when she went on the stand in this particular case. "He won't take me anywhere with him, and he won't let me go anywhere without him, and he makes me comb my hair this way, just so I'll look like an old woman, and nobody will think I'm pretty, and I'm not going to comb the curls out of my hair for anybody any more.

"I'll wear his old mud-colored dresses, and plain old hats—he picks them out himself—but when it comes to my curls it's either I keep 'em and wear 'em the way I want 'em, or I get a divorce, and that's flat!"

What did the judge say to all this?

Being a judge of humor and a judge of common sense, and a judge of kindliness, the judge told the young person that he had yet to see on the statute books of California, where the case was tried, any law setting forth the proper attitude as to the combing of hair.

"Desertion, cruelty, failure to provide, infidelity, imprisonment for crime, hopeless insanity—these are causes for divorce, according to our law," said the judge. "There isn't a word about curls in the whole library of law."

And so the little wife went home and the husband went home with her—I wonder if she's wearing her hair curled today?

If she isn't, she won't be wearing it at all very long—not in that man's home, be sure of that.

A Feeling of Sympathy

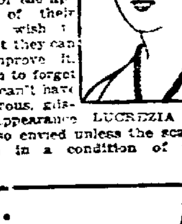

What a silly man to think he can keep a woman true to him by making her unattractive to other men.

And what a silly woman who allow matters to get to the point where she has to go into court to get her husband to consent to let her comb her hair as she wants to comb it.

And yet, there's a wee feeling of sympathy in your heart for her right now, isn't there?

How You May Really Beautify Your Scalp and Hair

By LUCREZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

LUCREZIA BORI

IF you would have lustrous, healthy, beautiful hair you must have a scalp which is in perfect condition.

Many women complain of the appearance of their hair, and wish to know what they can do to improve it. They seem to forget that hair can't have that lustrous, glistening appearance which is so envied unless the scalp and roots are in a condition of perfect health.

Many women seem to be troubled with a scalp that is too dry, and for their benefit I want to talk to you about this unnatural condition.

The root of each hair contains a tiny gland whose mission it is to secrete oil to keep the hair in the most ideal condition. This means oily enough to have a lovely sheen and to stay in place when arranged, but not so oily that this quality becomes noticeable or objectionable.

Now when your scalp is too dry it is evident that this tiny gland is not doing its duty properly. Perhaps the roots of your hair need more nourishment. Perhaps your scalp is never massaged so that it is sufficiently loose for your blood to circulate freely here and carry its rich store of oxygen to the cells.

What I advise is frequent intervals of rubbing your scalp briskly with your finger-tips. You may do this twice a week for a longer period, or for a few minutes every night when you go to bed. Wiggle your scalp about with your finger-tips until you feel that it is loose and not stretched tight over your head. Also rub well down about the base of your neck and farther down your back if you can. It is well if you can have some one to do this for you, as the important veins which carry nourishment up to your scalp are here, and it is always a good thing to stimulate them.

Another important thing that cannot be neglected is your shampoo. For the normal head of hair, I consider two weeks the proper interval between shampoos. Of course there may be reasons why greater or less periods seem best.

If your scalp is dry, it doesn't follow that shampooing will make it still drier, for the proper soap used in shampoo can do much to replenish the natural oils that are too scarce.

Here is a shampoo mixture for a dry scalp that I consider very good:

Castile soap	4 ounces
Alcohol	½ pint
Water	3 quarts

Have your water boiling and shave your castile soap up in it, allowing the soap to dissolve entirely before you take the mixture off the heat. Add your alcohol to this.

Keep in a well-corked bottle and use in your shampoos. Have about three times as much of this shampoo mixture as you do water. Saturate your hair thoroughly and rub your scalp with your finger-tips. Be sure to cleanse the ends of your hair with fresh suds.

A bath spray is invaluable in giving yourself a shampoo. With its aid you can rinse your hair thoroughly, and to achieve the best beauty results your hair must be altogether free from any soap particles after the shampoo.

ADVICE TO GIRLS :: By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl in my teens. I had known a young man about my age for over a year. I liked him very much. He was the first young man friend I ever had. He seemed to care as much for my friendship as I did for his. We met at almost every party I went to. I was considering asking him to my home (for although we were quite good friends I had never asked him) when I thought he acted queer when we met—as though he no longer cared for my friendship. Therefore, I decided not to bother about him longer, and stopped speaking altogether.

I did not realize how much I had learned to like him until then. I have since thought that I may have imagined his coolness, but did not have the nerve to speak first as it probably is my place to do, because if he did not acknowledge my greeting you can imagine how embarrassed I would feel. Would you advise me to risk it? I can see no other way of resuming this friendship, which I have missed so much.
JUST ME.

JUST ME: If you want to do the polite thing invite the young man to call on you. It was very rude of you to stop speaking to him without any apparent reason, my dear.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a man 18 years old. I am in love with a girl 19 years old.

I've loved her ever since I've known her. She is going to a different school from me. When she is at home she seems delighted to be with me, but when she is away she doesn't write often, and she has other young men friends, and won't tell me about them.

What can I do to win her love?
FRANK M.

FRANK M.: Be as polite and courteous to the young lady as you know how. But don't think you can demand all of her time or thoughts. You are not engaged, and it is not only natural, but better for you both, to have other friends.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
What would you think of a man who professes to love you to the extent that he would gladly have you marry some one else more prosperous than he, because he cannot give you the home that he feels you are entitled to?

It seems to me that if a man really and truly loves a girl he would go through most anything for her rather than give her up to some one else.

Possibly I misunderstand this man but such an attitude certainly puzzles me.
EVA.

EVA: The man who makes such an offer to the supposed girl of his heart does not truly love her, my dear.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl in my teens. I have been going with a young man for several months. Is it correct to wave to him if he is at a distance? I noticed the other day another girl wearing his ring, and he has told me he loves me. Do you think he is deceiving me?

Should I speak to the young man about the ring?

Is it correct to ask this young man whether he is married?
BLUE-EYED FRANKIE.

BLUE-EYED FRANKIE: It is not dignified to wave to a young man.

You are not engaged to the young man, and have no right to inquire into his private affairs. However, by all means ask him if he is married. That is a different matter.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

YOUR HEALTH

What Prize-Baby Judges Say Are Baby's Chief Needs

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

IN connection with a health exposition in New York there was a baby contest. This was designed to discover the most perfect infant attending the baby health stations of the New York City Department of Health.

Thousands of babies were entered in the race, and there was great interest, even excitement, over the contest. The number of contestants for first place narrowed down to five, and from these five was selected the prize winner.

I think it would be easier and safer, perhaps, to tame a herd of wild ponies than to be a judge in a baby contest. Today I saw in a newspaper a crude quatrain which recites the troubles of such judges:

They had a baby show,
The babies ran neck and neck;
The winning baby's a perfect kid,
But the judge is a perfect wreck.

Babies are such winsome creatures, each possessing superior qualities of body and temper, that it is extremely hard to define and determine the winning points.

Three chief factors were given greatest consideration in awarding the prize:
Feeding.
Home care.
Physical condition.

Let us consider these somewhat in detail, first as to feeding. The highest score was given the breast-fed baby.

There can be no doubt that the highest good of the infant is served by this attention on the part of the mother. Of course, this is not possible in every instance. Her health or condition may not be such as to permit this. But whenever possible the mother should give her baby the blessing of this start toward health and happiness.

In case the mother cannot care for her child—in any event after it is weaned—the purest and best cow's milk, properly prepared, must be administered. The feedings must be at regular intervals, and in amounts suited to the age and size of the child.

In determining the winner great attention was given the home care of the infant. Personal cleanliness, ventilation of the living quarters, the amount of sleep and out-of-door air given the child, and the general appearance of the home, were all factors of importance in deciding the contest.

Of course, the results of proper feeding and home care are shown by the physical condition of the child. The third and most important factor is this:

The height and weight, the development of the body—particularly the chest and abdomen—the number and condition of the teeth, the absence of adenoids and enlarged tonsils or other glands, the proper closing of the "soft spot" on top of the head, and the absence of any sign of disease—all these were studied and recorded.

Finally, the judges decided that a lovely little boy, Charles O'Donnell, Jr., aged 11 months, was the most perfect baby in all the city of New York.

Answers to Health Questions

BOBBY. Q—I am a boy 17 years old and am 5 feet 7 inches in height. Will you kindly tell me what my correct weight should be?

A—For your age and height you should weigh about 134 pounds.

D. S. Q—My eyes are very dull and I look as though I were sleepy. Will you please tell me what to do for this?

A—It would be best for you to have your eyes examined to make sure that there is no abnormal condition present. If not, build up your general health by eating good nourishing food, including milk, cream and eggs. Exercise regularly, and be out-of-doors as much as possible. Practice deep breathing, and get regular hours of sleep in a well-ventilated room.

• • •

C. H. Q—I am a boy 16 years old, and I blush very easily. Will you please tell me what to do for this?

A—Blushing is usually due to self-consciousness, and you will outgrow it. Do not think so much about yourself. Think of others and this will help you to overcome this habit.

• • •

EXPECTING. Q—Will you please tell me how to strengthen weak ankles?

A—Rising on the toes and then on the heels is very beneficial for weak ankles. If your condition does not improve, consult an orthopedist and have him advise you about wearing ankle supports.

• • •

D. C. A. Q—I am 22 years old. For the past two years I have been troubled with tubercular glands. Will you please tell me whether this trouble can be cured?

A—Yes, this condition can be cured. Rest, fresh air, sunlight, cod-liver oil as a tonic and 10 per cent. ichthyol ointment applied to the glands are all helpful.

• • •

P. F. S. Q—My hands are cold and sometimes look very blue. Will you please tell me what causes this and what to do for it?

A—This is due to poor circulation. You should build up your general health by eating good nourishing food, including milk, cream and eggs. Exercise regularly, and be out-of-doors as much as possible. Get regular hours of sleep in a well-ventilated room.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, MARCH 27.

The lunar and mutual transits for this day presage a fair degree of activity in all commercial and professional transactions. Particularly should all matters having to do with writings, contracts and publication respond to the benefic rule of Mercury trine Luna. Mercury also in aspect with Saturn, while subduing the volatile Mercurial tendency, may give seriousness and stability to mental operations, making the judgment reliable. Avoid change and travel.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of activity, but they should avoid change and travel. It should be a fairly successful year. A child born on this day will be quick, clever, active, and have a serious mind, with good judgment and sagacity. It may be restless unless carefully trained, and may succeed best in the employment of others.

Silver Ribbons Drop from Girdle Motif to Skirt Hem of This Graceful Dancing Frock.

GRAY is lovely for evening especially when the material is soft and sheer. This evening model combines light and dark gray tulle, and lightens the combination by the addition of silver ribbon.

Light tulle makes the bodice and the skirt, while the darker gray is inset at either side. The dark gray inset is closely gathered, making the skirt graceful for dancing.

Silver and dark gray thread alternate in the embroidered motif at the centre-front, and from it the silver ribbons drop to the hem of the skirt.

NEWS FROM NEBRASKA

ORGANIZATION OF C. A. R. AT CRETE

Chaplain Seven Years Old Delivers Opening Prayer at Installation of Chapter of Children of American Revolution.

CRETE, Neb., March 26.—A chapter of Children of the American Revolution was organized in Crete recently at the home of Mrs. B. O. Miller, who is district organizer and presiding officer of the society. The meeting was opened with a prayer by Chaplain Robert H. Miller, aged seven years, who performed his duty very earnestly.

Gen. George H. Hastings, S. A. R. and pioneer, who has seen Crete grow from a small village to its present size, very fittingly installed the appointed charter officers, the Crete chapter having the largest charter list in the state. Mrs. Miller will be assisted by the following officers:

Vice president, Vivian Milks.
Secretary, Harriet Johnson.
Treasurer, Florence K. Miller.
Treasurer, Richard Mixa.
Historian, Dorothy Lothrop.
Editor, Cyril Milks.
Chaplain, Robert Holbrook Miller.
Color Bearer, John Lothrop.

Gen. Hastings gave the children a very interesting talk on Things That Are American, after which the juniors gave the remainder of the program as follows:

Speech of welcome, Ruth Rosalie Mixa.
Recitations, Charles Orville Spadt, Betta Davenport, Ronald Douglas, and Jean Lathrop.
Piano solo, Emajane Spadt.
Vocal solo, Allie Ruth Johnson.
Recitation, Ten Reasons Why I Am a C. A. R., Virgania Milks.
Recitation, Marjorie Douglas.

Mrs. J. S. Brown as regent responded for Crete chapter, D. A. R. and President J. N. Bennett of Doane college also spoke for the S. A. R., of which heis president.

Cyril Milks was appointed delegate to the national C. A. R. convention, which meets in Washington, D. C., while Florence Miller, Harriett Johnson and Vivian Milks were appointed delegates to the state convention in Lincoln. Richard Mixa, Dorothy Lothrop, Betty Davenport, Emajane Spadt and Robert H. Miller are alternates.

Twenty-two of the twenty-three charter members were present. The youngest member, Frank E. Mixa, jr., is one year old.

BRIEF STATE NEWS.

Lexington—The business men held a caucus and nominated the following persons for office: Councilman, First ward, John Battie; Second ward, R. S. Lena; Third ward, Paul Brown. Members school board, Mrs. A. E. Wade and D. P. Rankin. There will be a proposition to vote for a two-mill levy to build an auditorium for the city.

Lexington—The Lexington Country club elected officers for the coming year. C. Rosenberg was elected president; J. C. McKee, vice president; J. B. Woods, treasurer; Kenneth Jacobson, secretary. It was voted to make some permanent improvements at the grounds by enlarging the swimming hole and golf course.

Lexington—Captain J. W. Crissey of the United States army, mustered in a company of fifty-six men last night. The company will be known as Wagon company 119, of thethirty-fifth division train, quartermaster's corps, national guards. Victor M. Hovis is the captain of the company; Addison E. Cook, jr., lieutenant.

Tecumseh—The Tecumseh Military band has contracted for the services of the present bandmaster and instructor, Prof. J. J. Fiala, for another year, dating from April 1. The band is getting in condition for the usual weekly open air concerts, to be given thruout the summer months.

Tecumseh—The city of Tecumseh has bought a third engine of a Kansas City machine company, to displace a worn machine. The city has one of the best water and electric plants in this section of the state, furnishing electric lights and power to this city and to Sterling, Cook, Graf and Elk Creek. All machines are in triplicate, and the service is continuous.

Tecumseh—Dr. and Mrs. Peter VanFleet, who now live at University Place, are spending the winter in Mexico. Dr. VanFleet was in the Methodist ministry in Nebraska for fifty years, and has retired. He was former superintendent of the Nebraska City district, and previous to that held pastorates in different towns in this section. Dr. and Mrs. VanFleet spent last winter in California. They report a fine winter in Mexico.

Tecumseh—The three-act comedy, "Come Out of the Kitchen," was repeated at the Smith opera house last evening to a good-sized crowd. The play was given under the direction of the Tecumseh Woman's club, and the proceeds were added to the club's community house building fund.

Barneston—Jacob E. Hodge, thirty-five years old, a resident of this place for many years, died at his home Saturday. He was brought from Wymore, where he has recently been employed as a railway fireman suffering with a case of small pox. Pneumonia developed, which caused death.

Wymore—Word has been received here from Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Gafford, residents of Wymore for the past forty years, dated from Buenos Aires, South America. They left here two months ago, and are touring the South American continent. They state that they had a hot, dusty, three days ride from Valparaiso, Chile, over the Andes Mountains, to Buenos Aires.

Wymore—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ruschke, former desidents of Wymore for many years, have arrived here from their homestead in eastern Colorado, making the trip from Wray, Colo., to Wymore, a distance of 400 miles, in the old fashioned way by team and covered wagon, it taking twenty days to complete the trip. Mr. Ruschke at one time was a railway conductor out of Wymore.

Lee Herdman Says He Netted $10,000 in Fifty Days as Officer for Colonial Company.

OMAHA, March 26.—Being director and secretary of the Colonial Timber and Coal company netted Lee Herdman, Omaha lawyer, $10,000 in fifty days, he testified at the trial of Willard V. Mathews, Thomas H. Matters and others charged with alleged mail frauds in federal court here today. Herdman gave nothing but his services, he testified.

PROBE SHOOTING OF BOY

Omaha Coroner's Jury to Conduct Inquest Into Killing of James Holecek, Fifteen.

OMAHA, March 26.—A coroner's jury will conduct an inquest this afternoon over the body of James Holecek, fifteen, killed Saturday night by a bullet from the gun of Steve Knehal, who said he mistook the boy for a burglar. Knehal was held pending the verdict.

UNABLE TO FURNISH $1,000 BOND

Creighton, Neb., Man Known as "Dynamite" Held at Center.

CREIGHTON, Neb., March 26.—Walter Wyland, Creighton, Neb., better known as "Dynamite," was bound over to the district court this week by County Judge B. S. Cook on a liquor charge. He was held on $1000 bond. Unable to furnish it, he is being held in jail at Center.

Sheriff John Kellogg and Deputy Clark Parkhurst, last Monday afternoon, went to his place and found a copper still in operation in his cellar. They discovered 150 gallons of mash and one-half gallon of the finished product.

OMAHA STARTS TO CLEAN UP

Forty-one Persons Arrested and Orient Gardens Closed in Drive Against Vice.

OMAHA, March 26.—Closing of the Orient gardens and arrest of forty-one persons in four raids featured the week end drive against alleged liquor selling, gambling and disorderly houses made by Police Commissioner Butler's new morals squad headed by Detective Andy Trapp.

No arrests were made at the Orient gardens, altho ten bottles of liquor were found under tables, Trapp said, because ownership of the liquor could not be determined. Bob Wilson, the proprietor, was ordered to close the place for the remainder of the night and more than 200 patrons were ejected. Trapp said he may apply for a permanent injunction closing the place.

Among the forty-one persons arrested in the raids were several prominent business and professional men, who gave fictitious names when booked at police hadquartrs, according to police. One of them is a lawyer prominently identified in the Colonial Timber and Coal company mail fraud cases now being tried in federal court.

AUTO CRASH VICTIM DEAD

Benedict Larson Passes Away as Result of Accident Near Sweetwater Last Tuesday.

RAVENNA, Neb., March 26.—Benedict Larson died as a result of injuries received in an automobile accident last Tuesday. Together with two of his brothers, he was struck by a passenger train at a crossing six miles west of Ravenna. All were seriously injured and taken to the hospital at Grand Island, where Benedict seemed to be getting along better than his brothers, but was taken suddenly worse and died. He was about twenty years of age and was a student at the Ravenna high school.

OMAHA WOMAN'S CHECKS BAD

Said to Have Cashed $1,000 Worth of Valueless Checks.

OMAHA, March 26.—A fashionably dressed woman, said to be familiar with Omaha society, has been cashing bad checks in several of the local stores. Her depredations are said to exceed $1,000.

Her method is to register at a hotel, enter some store for a purchase and present a check which calls for change. Then she also says to the clerk, "charge it." Her requests have always been granted.

Record for Duroc Jersey.

TECUMSEH, Neb., March 26.—A duroc jersey sow at the stock farm of W. M. Putman & Son here yesterday farrowed twenty-one fully developed pigs. All were not saved, but the most of them were. The sow is one of the fine pedigreed animals of this farm. This is the record farrow in this section of the state.

Coach Dawson to Meet California Alumni; Gleam of Golden Rays on New Yorkers

FIVE LETTERS ARE EARNED AT INDOOR

Nebraska Track Squad Shoves Off for Invasion of West—Layton Laid Up With Sprained Ankle But Not Serious.

Coach Dawson Goes West.

Head Coach Dawson leaves Tuesday night for California. He will see the meet April 7 in which Nebraska and University of California track teams clash at Berkeley, but he is making the trip primarily to meet Nebraska alumni now residing in California in connection with the memorial stadium drive. University of Southern California has been intimating that it would like a regular place on the Nebraska grid schedule. Coach Dawson might possibly talk this over while in the golden west altho he gave no hint of it.

HUTCHINSON, Kas., March 26.—The Nebraska university trake team on its way to California left here at 11:10 p. m. Saturday in a special car on the Santa Fe. They had a thirty minute stop at Topeka for luncheon and spent the afternoon playing pitch and studying.

Coach Schulte gave orders for everyone to get into track suits by 5:15 Sunday and a fifteen minute stop at Newton, Kas., at 5:30 p. m. gave them time for a workout. All worked except Layton, who is laid up with a sprained ankle, which is not serious. Captain Ed Allen looked good Saturday night, winning from Pittinger, the Missouri miller, by a good margin and then came back and took third in the two mile event. He was high point man for Nebraska, making seven points.

Five new men made letters in the valley meet: Noble, in the fifty-yard dash; Turner, high jump, Hartman and Parks in the shot, and Gleason in the pole vault, making a total of ten men having made their letter during the indoor season, including Lloyd in the 300-yard at Illinois relays, and the fifty-yard dash in the valley meet; Layton in the indoor meet; Gardner in the medley and the half mile Saturday night and Allen in the medley at Illinois and the mile and two mile in the valley meet. The Huskers special had a thirty minute stop at Hutchinson, Kansas.

"DIAMOND DUST FROM TRAINING CAMPS"

Ruth Gets Two Hits.

NEW ORLEANS, March 26.—Babe Ruth got a single and double in four times up as the Yankees were beating the New Orleans club, 3 to 2.

Robins Breaking Camp.

CLEAWATER, Fla., March 26.—Wilbert Robinson and his Brooklyn Robins began preparations to break camp today. The Robins are to join the New York Yanks in New Orleans Thursday.

Tygers To Play Rochester.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 26.—Manager Ty Cobb and twenty Tygers will join forces with the Rochester International league club at Athens today preparatory to beginning a six game series.

Indians Meet Philly Nationals.

LAKELAND, Fla., March 26. — Today the Cleveland Indians take on the Philadelphia Nationals.

Athletics In Bad Week End.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 26.—The Athletics had a heart rending week end. Rochester tied Connie Mack's "A" team 4 to 4. Two defeats and one tie composed the series against the New York state nine. In Mobile the Mobile players defeated the Athletics' "B" team, 4 to 3.

Red Sox Lose to Pirates.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 26.—The Red Sox scored three in the ninth but lost to Pittsburgh 12 to 11 in a game featured by six homers and loose fielding. Mitchell, Boston shortstop, had four errors against him.

Washington to Play Cards.

BRADENTOWN, Fla., March 26.—The Nationals expect to make it three straight over the St. Louis Cardinals by taking today's game. Donnie Bush has practically decided to pitch Warmuth and McGrew. The Griff men have played six games so far, winning three and losing three.

KERR WINS DIAMOND TROPHY

Beats Varney at Ansley Traps and Takes Western Zone Title.

ANSLEY, Neb., March 26.—Shooting against a strong, cold, raw northeast wind, with the sky dark, H. L. Kerr defeated Jim Varney 89 to 84 for the diamond medal trophy and championship of the Western Zone Trapshooters' association of Nebraska here.

On Sunday, April 22, Kerr will defend his title against Max Von Goetz of North Platte. Following this special match shoot there will be a registered shoot of 100 targets.

WEST POINT PLACES A TEAM IN ELKHORN LOOP

WEST POINT, Neb., March 26.—West Point has joined the Elkhorn Valley baseball league. Under the auspices of the West Point Community club, the West Point team is to play 28 games with the other teams in the league from April 22 to September [illegible]

American Golf Team Is Fortunate In Its Captain

Two years ago Bob Gardner carried Cyril Tolley, the great British amateur golf star, to the thirty-seventh hole before admitting defeat in the final round of the British amateur championship.

No American had done so well in the British title hunt since Walter Travis won the English crown away back in the days a when golf club was, to many, almost as indicative of character as a red tie and spats.

This year Gardner is to captain the American amateur team on its invasion of England to play the British amateur championship and in the Walker cup matches.

ROBERT A. GARDNER

"Chick Evans, Francis Ouimet and S. Davison Herron are the other former champions included in the membership of the team, but none of them can match the Chicago star in the quality of leadership, and it was almost inevitable that Gardner should have been selected to lead the American mashie swingers.

Gardner has won the American amateur title that Gardner should have been selected to student at Yale and causing the flappers of that time to emit startled gasps as he cleared the bar in the pole vault at record height.

Last winter Bob showed close to championship form in several squash tournaments, a game that was new to him. Gardner carries the invaluable aid of a master competitive spirit into the game with him, however, and given that plus a good physique always well cared for he is a hard man to beat at any game.

Gardner is a doer of remarkable things, a versatile athlete and an ideal man to lead the American golfers on their foreign invasion.

PICKS WINNER AND WINS $175,000 NET

Arnold Rothstein Would Not Believe E. M. Fuller Was "Right"—Other Sidelights on One of Racing's Plungers.

(Editor's Note: This is the second article of a series on big bets made on the American turf. Another will be published next Sunday.)

Arnold Rothstein is the only plunger of recent times credited with tapping the ring. Rothstein is now a millionaire real estate operator, having retired from the turf. He was conspicuous by his absence last year, but during 1921 he was the most sensational plunger. Rothstein was alleged to have cleaned up a million in two seasons. Just how he did finish is a matter of speculation, as Rothstein himself has declined to say how his racing ledger balanced.

"Bet All You Can."

During 1921 Rothstein had five or six betting commissioners. It is well known that when he decided to bet he never told his commissioners to bet any fixed sum. "Get down all you can," was his usual word to them. At Aqueduct one day Rothstein liked Sporting Blood. The horse was the favorite, 1 to 4, and Rothstein said to his commissioners, "If you can get 3 to 10 tap the ring."

Abe Livingston went down the line to Lob Cohen. "Will you lay 3 to 10?" he asked Cohen. "Sure," said Cohen. "I'll tap you," said Abe. "What do you mean, you'll tap me?" asked Lob. "All you will stand," said Abe. "You are on $3,000 against $10,000," said Cohen. Livingston went on down the line, hailing every memory broker, while Rothstein's other commissioners were doing the same. When the horses got away the ring was loaded. Sporting Blood was beanten by Dough Girl, a 20 to 1 shot, and Rothstein lost $250,000.

The day Sidereal won at Aqueduct Rothstein more than made it up. He plunged so high that Sidereal's price was driven from 30 to 1 to 2 1-2 to 1. Rothstein cleaned up $300,000 on the race.

Matched for $86,000.

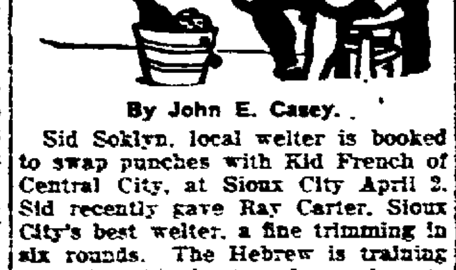

Rothstein was a natural gambler. He would bet a fortune on the flip of a coin, on a pool or billiard game, on most anything. Several years ago E. M. Fuller, the broker who recently went to smash in Wall street, visited the track. "You can't pick a winner," Rothstein said to him. "I'll take all your bets." Fuller, it happened, was riding old Lady Luck that day and at the end of the sixth race Rothstein owed Fuller $86,000.

"I'll match you for the $86,000," Rothstein said to Fuller.

"All right," said Fuller, who at that time was rolling high.

Fuller won, and Rothstein paid him $172,000.

Sid Soklyn, local welter is booked to swap punches with Kid French of Central City, at Sioux City April 2. Sid recently gave Ray Carter, Sioux City's best welter, a fine trimming in six rounds. The Hebrew is training hard for this bout and promises to keep French plenty busy while they are in the ring. Earl Trenholm of Lincoln will referee this card.

Earl Puryear, Denver bantam, is another knight of the squared circle who would like to display his stuff in a local ring. Earl bars no one in the world and his record shows popular decisions over Johnny Buff, Jo Burman, Pete Herman, Pal Moore, Kid Williams, Frankie Mason, Roy Moore, Babe Asher, Joey Schwartz and others of like ability.

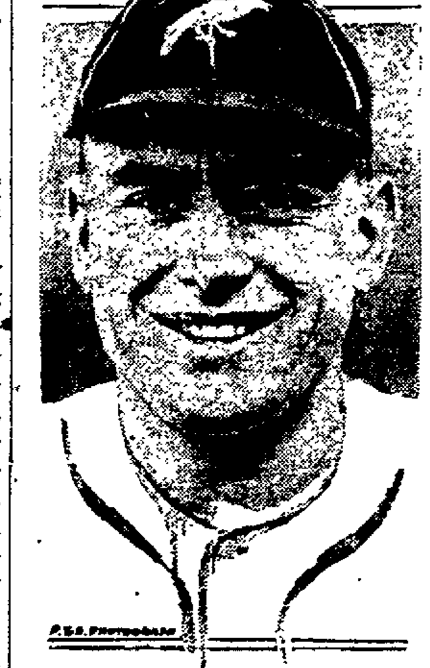

Jimmy Gill, La Crosse, Wis., welter, gave Lou Bollinger a good lacing in their battle at La Crosse. Lou stopped Jimmy the first time they met with what was called a "wild" right swing. Press dispatches indicate that Gill had little difficulty in keeping away from the wild ones and hit Bollinger at will after the second canto.

Ted Zanfes, Sioux City leatherpusher, and Kid French, Central City welter, are to collide April 12 at Central City. French is meeting the toughest man of his career in Zanfes and it promises to be some battle.

Morrie Schlaifer, Omaha's "Fighting Fool" is slated to tangle with Johnny Karr, Cleveland welter, in the main event at Omaha March 29. Karr recently beat Schlaifer in ten rounds at Davenport, Ia. "Tiny" Herman, Omaha heavy, collides with Andre Anderson of Chicago in the semi-windup.

Andy Schmader, one of Jack Lewis's heavyweights and a Nebraska boy, meets Tommy Gibbons Monday night at Peoria. [illegible] a lucky one.

Sentiment Finally Moves Jack Bentley

JACK BENTLEY

BALTIMORE, Md., March 26.—Jack Bentley admitted today that sentiment proved stronger than tenacity in the decision he has made to report to the New York Giants at San Atonio for what is left of the spring training season. The death of John Dunn jr., a few days ago brought about his change of heart. He was in the army with the younger Dunn and they were great friends. Rather than add to the troubles of the older Dunn over part of the purchase price of $65,000 received from the New York club, Bentley decided to give up his "money strike" and report to the Giants.

JACK BRITTON WILL TELL LIFE'S STORY

One of the Gamest and Longest-Lasting Welters Ring Has Ever Known Back Tracks Over His Twenty-Year Career.

"My Twenty Years in the Ring" by Jack Britton, former welterweight champion, which will appear in The Journal beginning March 30, tells in breezy narrative style of the long experience of one of the greatest fighters in American boxing annals. Jack Britton began his career when a lad of fifteen years in Chicago, Ill.

He was thirty-five years of age before he relinquished his title to Mickey Walker, the present holder, in Madison Square Garden, New York, last November. No fighter has ever held his own over such a long period of years and only one or two boxers of prominence have kept to the ring beyond the age of thirty.

Tells of Long Career.

Starting with his championship bout with Walker in 1922, Britton treks back over the long vista of his career. He tells of the sensational fight with Benny Leonard, and the much-disputed foul which gave him the title, of his mills with Ted Lewis, Charley White, Mike O'Dowd, and Packey McFarland. He gives the reader a peek behind the scenes telling what goes on before and after a big bout, how a fighter feels when he steps into the glare of the arc-lamps—tricks of the fighting game—training difficulties—the unwritten laws of the profession.

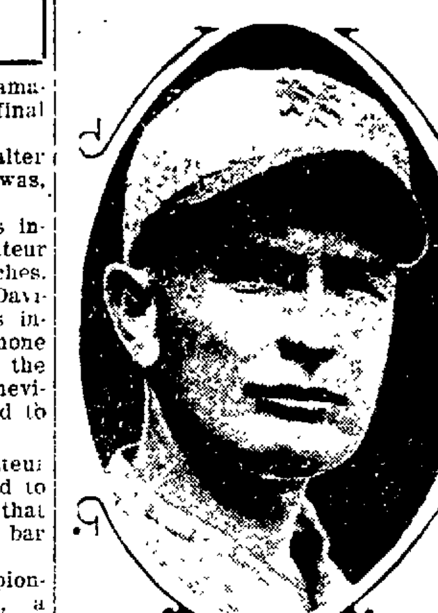

Britton started professional boxing in the days when the sport was looked upon with scant approval. His narrative, full of anecdote and reminiscence, parallels the rise of the profession to its present place in popular esteem. He throws an interesting light upon the early careers of many men, since notable in the fistic realm, whose histories have never been written—Jack Johnson, McFarland, Kid Broad, Terry Young, Johnny Regan, Albert Badoud, the French champion and many others.

All About the Game.

His observations on the conduct of great fighters—both in the ring and out—the ups and downs of the game, the temptations and denials of the fighter's life, the sensations of battle, the joys of victory and the sorrows of defeat, are all told frankly and entertainingly.

To read Britton's story "My Twenty Years in the Ring" is to catch a glimpse, in thirteen short articles, of the recent history of one of the most popular sports in the world.

FELT LONG ARM OF JOHN J. M'GRAW

EARL SMITH

JACK SCOTT

Two Giants who gazed on the "cawn" when it was white, were not only rebuked but fined by Manager McGraw. "These athletes are paid enough to keep in condition. They're going to do it," said John J. in explaining his action.

Nebraska Diamond Hopes Standing by

Over forty of the seventy candidates for the Nebraska baseball team passed up spring vacation as a chance to go home in order to keep on working for a berth on the team. Head Coach Dawson announced Monday morning that he was still working on the Oklahoma trip but had nothing definite to announce.

In the meantime Coach Scott Dye is still doing what he can to round the Huskers into shape for the opening at Norman, April 2-3, with the Oklahoma Sooners. To date the Nebraskans have never been outside.

"But we're going to hold some batting practice if we have to go up an alley. Taking a team to Oklahoma without an hour's practice in the open would certainly be putting a green bee in the field," Coach Dye insisted. Rock Island park will be too muddy for use for some time. Landis field may be used.

SMOKY KERR WINS MEDAL

Carries Off Championship of Western Zone Trapshooters Association of the State.

ANSLEY, Neb., March 25.—Shooting against a strong, cold, raw northeast wind and a dark and cloudy sky, Smoky Kerr defeated Jim Varney, 89 to 84, for the Diamond medal trophy and championship of the western zone trapshooters association of the state.

ODDS FAVOR JOHNNY KARR IN BOUT WITH SCHLAIFER

OMAHA, March 26.—With the arrival today of Johnny Karr, hard hitting Cleveland boxer, who meets Morrie Schlaifer in the main event, all of the principals in the Veterans of Foreign Wars card at the auditorium Thursday night are in Omaha finishing their training for the bouts. Karr, who won a newspaper decision over Schalifer at Davenport last month, is a 10 to 7 favorite in the betting.

Tiny Herman, Omaha heavyweight who met Ole Anderson in the semi-wind up will get a chance to show his wares in Madison Square Garden if he disposes of giant Minnesota Norseman, according to promoters here.

The result was never in doubt, Varney missing seven of his first twenty-five targets and Kerr breaking twenty-three, twenty-four, twenty-three and nineteen. Varney broke eighteen, twenty-four twenty-one, twenty-one. Kerr will defend his title against Max Von Goetz of North Platte. Following the shoot for the trophy, there will be a registered shoot of one hundred targets.

Ohio Pin Smasher Takes A. B. C. Lead

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 26.—C. Baumgartner, Cincinnati, took the lead in the singles of the American bowling congress here last night, with 724.

Two teams shot their way into the first five team event leaders. The Schwab-Pollock Poster Prints, Buffalo, went into second place with 2,952. Jubilee Spring Waters, another Buffalo team, went into fifth place with 2,901. The leaders:

WESTERN ADOPTS A SCHEDULE

Open April 12 and Play 168 Games Closing on September 30.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., March 26.—A 168-game schedule for the 1923 season was adopted by Western league moguls here yesterday. It was decided to open the season April 12 and close September 30.

As arranged Des Moines will open at Wichita; Sioux City at St. Joseph; Omaha at Tulsa and Denver at Oklahoma City.

DILLER WINS CLASS A CUP

Postponed Finals of Jefferson County Meet Played Off.

DILLER, Neb., March 26. — The postponed finals in the Jefferson county basketball tournament were played off here Saturday evening. Diller won the cup in class A, on account of Reynolds and Steele City forfeiting by non-appearance, and Daykin won in class B. Class A scores: Diller, 22; Plymouth, 7. Class B score: Daykin 37; Endicott, 18. Dakyin, 32; Jansen, 21.

Olympic Cruiser Champion Refuses to Enter Ranks of Professionalism

Eddie Eagen Passes Offers of Veteran Managers to Enter Prize Ring—Now a Student at Oxford.

By Henry L. Farrell.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Speaking of Eddie Eagen, light heavyweight champion of the Olympic games, captain of the Yale boxing team and later a member of the Harvard team, who is now at Oxford, "Sporting Life" (London) says of an inter-collegiate tournament in which he boxed recently:

"Eagen, Oxford, as a matter of course, won at catchweights and we suppose we shall have to hope in vain for an amateur capable of making him give of his best."

Righto, John, and more than righto! It will take the best pro you have in the fighting ranks to make him extend himself!

An Unusual Type.

Eagen is an unusual type of a young man in a day when a young man with any kind of talent in his fists rushes into the professional prize ring for what little fame and what big money he can acquire.

Eagen has all kinds of natural talent. Veteran managers have been after him for four years, but he scorned all offers to fight for money.

In explaining his rather unusual ideas, he told the writer in Antwerp during the Olympic games:

"I know I could make a lot of money in the prize ring. Perhaps I could become a champion and acquire whatever fame might be understood to attend such a conquest, but all the money and all the glory I might attain would not compensate me for the pang that would be mine if I ever heard one of my children taunted with—'your father's a prize fighter.'"

Eagen talks just that way and in his private life he carries out the same high ideals.

Cost Him Grid Berth.

Eagen knows that some stigma is attached even to an amateur boxer. He learned it at Yale and it cost him the realization of one of his fondest ambitions.

"Odd [illegible] about football" When he was over with the American Olympic team in 1920 at Antwerp he dashed home just as soon as the boxing finals had been completed. Most of the other boys were taking what trips around Europe they could afford.

"I want to be at Yale when the football squad reports. I'm going to try hard, but I don't believe I can make the team."

He wouldn't give a reason, but it was heard later from another source.

The powers that be at Yale didn't want a boxer on the varsity team, altho he was one of the fastest men on the team and a most promising end or halfback.

Returning from the war where he served, Eagen won a Knights of Columbus scholarship and he went to Yale and from there to Harvard law school, where he was as good in the class room as he was in the ring. He's still knocking out the books in England and some day he may be a champion barrister.

A "Might-Have-Been."

"I'd much rather have them say that I might have been champion instead of being able to boast that I was champion, because under the conditions I have the advantage of the doubt," he said.

Some very good judges of fighters after being told what Eagen had said suggested that a man of such mental development and intelligence would never have reached the top in the professional ring.

Men of that type, it was pointed out, lack the viciousness of a less intelligent man who may be an instinctive fighter. They do not have the inspiration to go in and knockout a man for the sheer act of doing it.

Boxers possessed of a developed brain and thinking apparatus do not have the will to win that others of less development have. Some intimations have been made that Tom Gibbons and Gene Tunney are not game. They have been proved game, but they have not the animal instinct in going into a man and finishing him.

These men think too much, some of the boys say. Others say that Charley White is not a champion because he thinks too little.

This proves that there is no general specifications for a fighter. Champions just happen, they are not developed and they cannot be explained.

MISSOURI VALLEY WINNERS FAVORED

Kansas and Nebraska Picked to Offer Strong Competition at Drake Relays—Big Ten Teams Entered.

DES MOINES, Ia., March 25.—Kansas and Nebraska, who proved to be the class of the conference in the Missouri valley indoor meet at Kansas City, Saturday, will offer keen competition to western conference institutions in the fourteenth annual Drake university relay meet, April 27-28, according to well informed dopesters.

Coach Schlademan of Kansas has one of the best teams in the west, including such stars as the great Norton, Rogers, present holder of the Drake relay pole vault record, the fleet Fisher and Griffin, Kellet, Meng, Wilson, Schaub and Poor.

Nebraska Showing Development.

The Nebraska squad is showing wonderful development under the old master "Indian" Schulte. Numbered among the outstanding performers of his outfit are Noble of football fame, and Lloyd, Lukens, Gardner, Allen, Layton, Smith and Lear, a mighty fast crew.

Missouri, under the tutelage of Coach Bob Simpson who, in his college days was a champion hurdler, and who holds the Drake relay meet record of 14 4-5 seconds for the 120-yard high hurdle event, has developed a well balanced track team that must be seriously considered in all events. He has a number of aces, including Pittinger, Simons, Utz, Surface, Elder, Chauncey Simpson, Coach Bob's younger brother, Bond, "Doug" Waddell, Captain Evans, Schnebley, Trowbridge, Meeker and Lincoln.

Coaches Art Smith of Ames, H. J. Huff of Grinnell, Bachman of Kansas Aggies, Rider of Washington, "Tug" Wilson of Drake and Oklahoma are also pointing some mighty good men who will furnish all comers interesting competition.

Big Ten Has Good Performers.

Pitted against the best the Missouri conference has to offer, "Big Ten" institutions will present a great array of track and field stars.

Steve Farrell's Michigan team is one of the best aggregations seen in the west in many years. He has such stars as Hubbard, Reinke, Brooker, Prosser, Van Orden, Isbell and a dozen other high class artists.

Harry Gill again has some outstanding men as shown by the indoor meets. Ayres, Collins, Brownell, Carter, Johnson and Scott are a sextet that would make any coach's heart glad, not to speak of Angier and a dozen others who will appear at the Drake meet.

The other western conference schools also have many outstanding men who will be in on the record breaking that is sure to come again this year at the Drake relays.

Knute Rockne has a trio of stars in Lieb, Barr and Hogan and these men are reinforced by a score of other stellar performers.

BOXING PRODUCES A FREAK IN FIRPO

South American Heavyweight Was Knocked Out First Time He Entered Ring—Called "Man Without a Smile."

By Ed Van Every.

Luis Angel Firpo, who is already being whispered of as the world's next heavyweight champion, was knocked out the very first time he made his appearance inside the roped arena.

"The man without a smile," with the assistance of an interpreter, was telling the story of his ring career. Firpo, under the fire of interview, is just as grave and phlegmatic as he is in the ring. A study of the man reveals that he is not only a greater freak of fistiana than at first suspected, but that he is abnormal in many ways from both a mental and physical standpoint.

Word pictures, as well as the camera, have given a pretty fair idea of the man to the outward eye—we instantly conceive a great shaggy bear in human guise. But how this comes to be so is certainly a mystery of nature, and of which even Firpo does not seem to know the solution.

Father Born in Italy.

His father was Italian born and settled in Argentine. Firpo's mother is of Spanish descent; she was taller than the elder Firpo, who was a rather small man. Luis was less than ten years old when he lost his mother. There is nothing extraordinary in the fact that this giant of a man should spring from parentage of normal build, but the apparently utter lack of the Latin temperament, this unemotional calm of the most stolid of Teutonic dispositions, is something to puzzle over in the case of Luis Firpo. Another cause for wonder in connection with the man is the fact that after he had reached his twentieth year he gained something like sixty-five pounds.

Firpo was past his twentieth birthday when he fought his first ring fight. After leaving high school he became a clerk in a drug store. He was athletically inclined and was quite a star at rugby football. Then one day he saw his first glove fight and was interested. He entered an amateur boxing tournament a few days later without training or experience. He was over twenty at the time, as already mentioned. And he only weighed 160 pounds; this was in January, 1917.

Lost His First Fight.

In this, his first fight, he met a man named Roderequiez, who had the advantage of experience and about twenty-five pounds in weight. Firpo says he did not think this was anything to grow discouraged over. This is not hard to imagine in the case of Mr. Firpo. So he fought about twenty more bouts as an amateur during the next year and a half, according to his story, and most of them resulted in knockouts to his credit. He claims he never suffered defeat after his first fight.

His first professional fight took place in 1917. William Daly, described as an American heavyweight who drifted in from Panama, was his opponent. Daly was kocked out in seven rounds. Then followed twenty-five more professional fights before he came to this country last year. Twelve of the fights took place in Chili, two in Uruguay and seven in Buenos Ayres. In more than two-thirds of these bouts he knocked his man out, and in one of them won a belt donated by the President of Chili. The rest of his ring history is well known. How far he will go on the road to champion's throne is a question that is going to make for much argument among the followers of the boxing game.

Calls For Three Bouts.

Firpo's contract with Tex Rickard calls for a meeting with Jack Dempsey if he disposes of three opponents selected by the promoter, and the title bout to take place within a year and a half. In the meanwhile—

The "man without a smile" will go into real training under Jimmy De Forest. There are no matches in prospect for the immediate future. But if something should happen to either Jess Willard or Floyd Johnson Firpo will be ready to face either on May 12 at the new Yankee stadium.

Tex Rickard, who is directing Firpo's affairs, is not inclined to hurry matters. "Who is there for him to fight right now?" queries Rickard. However, a few months under the hands of a man like De Forest and a couple of more fights and it is more than possible that the grave Mr. Firpo will have developed into a very serious heavyweight title contender.

Of course, Firpo says he is ready for Dempsey right now. Of course, he isn't.

"Are you married?" we asked. Firpo maintained his gravity as he answered, "No."

"How many sweethearts?" was the concluding question of our interview. He was still the "man without a smile" as well as the man of mystery. He said something but the interpreter did not translate the answer for us.

Rattle of World's Series Money Bag Should Serve as an Impetus

New York Players Would Grab Off Almost $10,000 Each If Baseball Classic Is Staged in Gotham.

By Henry L. Farrell.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Another world's series staged privately in New York will mean almost $10,000 each to the winning players and nearly as much to the losers.

This bait dangling before their fingers should make the Giants and the Yanks mighty hard to beat in the pennant races. It is sufficient to make even some of the languid Yanks shift into high gear.

The erection of the new Yankee stadium to accommodate a crowd of 70,000 and the improvements in the Polo grounds which will increase the capacity to 52,000, should provide a stimulus to the eight clubs in both leagues.

Means Considerable Money.

Every one of the American league clubs can figure on the end that would come to them if they played half or more of the series in the Giant park, and an even greater inducement is offered to the National league club that could beat out the Giants and get into a series in the Yankee stadium.

John McGraw has a great money club, perhaps the most balanced and cellected team under fire in either league. It is impossible to conceive of a more powerful urge on the Giants than the lash of McGraw and the rattling of coin in the series money bag. It is a combination that will impose a severe handicap upon the athletes of Pat Moran and Bill McKechnie.

Most all of the critics are willing to admit that the Yankees have a powerful machine if they would work as an organization. The ability of Miller Huggins to make them hustle has been the cause of debate in the past. Personally, Huggins may not be able to keep the club on edge this season, but if the promise of that money fails to influence them, the club might just as well be disbanded.

Second and Third Attracts.

In addition to a much greater purse for the athletes who will fight it out in the series if one end is staged in New York, there also will follow a substantial increase in the money that will be split among the clubs that finish second and third in both pennant races. The fight for third place in the American league should be a hummer and the contest in the National league should be just as warm.

It might be suggested that the fact that there are two big parks in New York adds to the dangers of commercialism that is said to be threatening baseball, but if it makes the teams hustle and creates two great pennant races the fans will not be overly concerned about how much money the magnates make out of it.

AMATEURS ARE TO MEET.

The Lincoln Amateur Baseball association will meet at the chamber of commerce at 8 p. m. Monday to take up the matter of granting franchises.

Trapshooters in Practice Trials

Cold weather made the regular shoot of the Lincoln trapshooting club impossible Sunday, so it was turned into a practice affair. J. Swanson, with 40 out of a possible 50 birds was high with George L. Carter getting 39 out of 50 and Dr. A. E. Wood, 35 out of 50 The rest of the contestants averaged around 15 out of 25. Another regular shoot will be held next Sunday at the club grounds north of Havelock, C. J. A. Kling, secretary, announced.

CAGE LETTERS GIVEN AGGIES

Six K. S. A. C. Basketballers Played in Twelve Full Halves.

MANHATTAN, Kas., March 26.—Six letters were awarded members of the Aggie basketball team at a meeting of the athletic board, it was announced today. This is the smallest number of letters ever awarded a K. S. A. C. cage team.

The high requirements for earning a letter were responsible for the small number given this season. Each man was required to play in twelve full halves and when the check was made it was found that only six men had played the allotted time.

Letters were presented to Captain Faval Foval of Winfield, Ray Hahn of Clay Center, Howard Webber of Dodge City, Lou Grothusen of Ellsworth, Perle Rumold of Manhattan, and Arthur Doolen of Manhattan.

Safe in the Big City.

"Are you trying to keep the young man on the farm?"

"No, sir," replied Farmer Corntossel. "I'm in favor of their goin' to town. There's a heap more moonshine licker made an' circulated in the rural districts than there is in the cities."—Washington Star.

STATE LEAGUE MEETING

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., March 25.—The directors of the Nebraska state league have been summoned to assemble here at the home of League President Miles, April 2 at 2 p. m. The special meeting has been called to adopt a playing schedule for the 1923 season.

YOUTHS HAVE LITTLE REGARD FOR RECORDS

Veteran Starter Amazed at Number of Marks Broken—Has Watched Records of Forty Years' Standing Fall.

By Joseph Gordon.

Starter Johnny McHugh was officiating at big track events before many of the present day athletes were born. He has seen them all in his day, and started them all, including such stars as Clark, Kohlemainen, Tabor, Shrubb. For that reason it is not often that the veteran evinces surprise at anything that happens in an athletic event.

But when "Boots" Lever, captain of the Pennsylvania track team, broke the world's record for seventy yards at the annual intercollegiate championships, Johnny got as much of a thrill out of it as the big crowd that witnessed the feat.

"Beats all how little respect these youngsters have for long established records this season," said McHugh.

Johnny was puffing away at his pipe, his new brown hat cocked in characteristic fashion over his right eye. We forgot to ask him what became of his famous black derby, the one with the curled brim. While he was waiting for the next event Johnny had a few words to say.

Greatest of Seasons.

"This is unquestionably the greatest indoor season I have seen in many years," he declared. "Records have been broken in every department. The high jump marks got an awful jolt at the Millrose games, as well as the long runs, middle distance runs and the sprints.

"Do you realize that Lever has just broken a record which has been standing twenty years? I have always known that Lever was a great sprinter, but I didn't realize that he would be able to run such a corking race as this. And I want to tell you that seventy yards in 7 1-10 seconds is some running.

"It is by far more difficult to accomplish this feat than breaking a two or three-mile record. I do not mean to say that the race between Ray and Ritola wasn't one of the greatest I have ever seen. But it is much easier for those fellows to lower the mark in that distance than for sprinters to break records in a sixty or seventy-yard dash. Ray or Ritola had three miles to run their race in. The sprinter has to do it in a rush or never. He doesn't have the chance of making up for lost time toward the end of the race. If he gets a bad start he is thru.

Murchison's Great Race.

"The race that will probably stand out as the most remarkable feat of the season was the sixty yard sprint at the Millrose games, in which Loren Murchison broke the world's record. The former record stood the test of forty-one years. The greatest sprinters the world has produced in the last four decades have been unable to better the mark Lon Myers established nearly half a century ago, altho several have equalled it.

"I believe that the main reason why so many remarkable performances are being shown now is that amateur athletics are being taken more seriously than ever before. Athletics have a greater following than they used to have, and public support counts for a great deal. In the first place, I believe that the athletes try harder when they perform before a big crowd. This has been proved to me time and again. There is a different spirit among the athletes when they know that they are being watched by five or ten thousand people than when there is just a handful of onlookers.

LAY BARRAGE ON ROAD BILL

GOOD ROADS ASSOCIATION OPENS FIRE ON WINGETT BILL.

Insists That 25 Per Cent Is Not Enough Money to Maintain State Highway Within Borders of Counties.

With H. R. 180 approaching the third reading hurdle in the house, the Nebraska good roads association is preparing to lay down a barrage that it hopes will stop its passage. The bill is by Mr. Wingett and provides for the use of but 25 per cent of the auto license money on the maintenance of roads. The following good roads catechism has been printed and was laid before the members of the house Monday, setting up that in eighty-eight counties the 25 per cent is insufficient:

1. Q. How many autos and trucks are there in Nebraska?
Ans. 256,654.
2. Q. How many autos and trucks are owned by farmers in Nebraska?
Ans. 99,792. (Agricultural statistics, 1922).
3. Q. What per cent of the autos and trucks of the state are owned by farmers?
Ans. About 38 per cent.
4. Q. What per cent are owned by city and village people?
Ans. About 62 per cent.
5. Q. Where are all of the auto license fees used?
Ans. Three and 1-3 per cent is used for administration of the law, and 96 1-2 per cent is used on the roads in the county in which the fees are collected.
6. Q. Can any of it be used on the streets of any village or city?
Ans. No.
7. Q. What part of the 96 1-2 per cent may be used to maintain state roads?
Ans. Not to exceed 75 per cent.
8. Q. What part of the 96 1-2 per cent goes into the county road fund directly?
Ans 25 per cent goes into the county road dragging fund.
9. Q. Do all of the counties use all of the 75 per cent?
Ans. No.
10. Q. What is done with the balance of the 75 per cent that is not used on the state system?
Ans. It goes to the road dragging fund of the county after January 1.
11. Q. Do any of the counties use all of the 75 per cent on the state roads?
Ans. Yes, three counties. One county used 153 per cent of the 75 per cent last year.
12. Q. In the counties where 75 per cent of the auto license fees is not sufficient to maintain state roads, how is the balance raised?
Ans. By direct taxation.
13. Q. Are the county boards required to maintain the state roads within the county?
Ans. Yes. They have signed a contract with the state department of public works that they will maintain them.
14. Q. If one county within the state fails to maintain the state roads within that county, what effect will it have on other counties of the state?
Ans. The other counties of the state will not get any federal aid until the roads in this particular county are taken care of.
15. Q. Has the state department of public works ever received notice from the federal government that any federal aid roads in the state were not being properly maintained?
Ans. Yes.
16. Q. Will 25 per cent of the auto license fees maintain the state roads in any county in the state?
Ans. In five counties only. (From records of last year's work filed in the office of the state department of public works.)
17. Q How many counties in the state cannot maintain the state roads with 25 per cent of the auto license fees?
Ans. Eighty-eight counties. (From same records.)
18. Q. If the federal aid roads in any county in the state are not properly maintained, will the federal government accept the contracts in the counties that do maintain their roads?
Ans. The federal government will not accept the contracts that have been let in the state unless the roads already constructed are kept in proper shape.
19. Q. Will the failure of one county in the state to take care of the federal roads in that county shut out all of the other counties in the state from having their contracts accepted by the federal government?
Ans. Yes, because the federal department deals only with the state as a whole thru the state highway department.

"CUPID'S WAY"

BY FAY STEVENSON

A Final Meeting With Dr. Kent.

In her new happiness Muriel had completely forgotten about few love letters and messages she and Dr. Kent had exchanged. But one evening when Landis was out of town Dr. Kent called her on the phone and asked that he might call for the last time.

"I have a few of your letters and cards I think you might like, now that you are engaged to another man," he reminded her, "and I believe you have a few of mine."

"I'll send them right over tomorrow," she replied.

"I think I'd rather call, if I may," he pleaded. "To send letters back might look as if we were really peeved over the whole affair. It would be so much more satisfactory to us both to just exchange them and have a final meeting."

How like Dr. Kent!

At length she agreed and half an hour later she found herself closeted with the most disagreeable man she had ever met.

As she sat opposite him she wondered how she had managed to spend so many hours in his company. What if he did have a large suburban home, a motor car and so many of the worldly things she wanted? After all, the only thing that counted in the long run of things was love.

"There is no danger of your changing your mind again, is there?" asked Dr. Kent after they had each exchanged a small package of letters and cards with a bit of colored ribbon.

"I hardly think so," she laughed with a toss of her head. Then added, "And are we soon to hear of your engagement to Miss Rogers?"

"Possibly, or it might be the petite widow!"

She looked at him thinking he was jesting, but she saw he was extremely earnest.

"Then you are in the same box I was," she flashed.

"Just about. Lulu Rogers is my Landis and the widow corresponds to me."

"What do you mean?"

"Simply that Lulu is crazy about me. You know it, your cousins know it and I don't think she pretends to conceal it."

"And you?"

"I like her; sometimes I think I love her nearly as much as I thought I loved you," he replied cynically.

"Then why don't you marry her? Love is the only thing in the world," declared Muriel, becoming interested in the doctor and Lulu and the promotion of real love.

"Because the petite widow has money."

"Surely you, a man, wouldn't be influenced by that!"

"You were. You know very well that you loved Landis right along, but you were tempted by my home, my car and the things that I could give you."

"But love won! I realized love is the only worth-while thing."

"Perhaps I shall see things in a different light. The widow is quite an attractive young woman, you know, and I am told she possesses about two hundred thousand. Add that to my pile and we could make quite a splurge!"

There was a prolonged ring and then two short ones at the door.

"That's Lulu Rogers now!" whispered Muriel. "If she sees you here she'll think we've made up. Slip into the library and I'll pull the portieres.

"I just want to talk to you and tell you of my troubles," wailed Lulu sinking into a comfortable chair, and Muriel smiled sweetly as she thought of Dr. Kent listening in the next room.

FOUR ELEVATOR VICTIMS

Des Moines Chief of Police Searches for Evidence of Negligence at Hotel.

DES MOINES, Ia., March 26.—With four dead from the crash Saturday when a Randolph hotel elevator fell eight stories to the basement, Chief of Police John B. Hammond today continued his search for evidence of negligence. The chief asserted the situation warranted prosecution.

Harry W. Hill, Earlham, Ia., banker whose wife was killed in the accident, died at a hospital here yesterday, leaving a nine-year-old daughter, Mary, an orphan. Mary sustained a broken leg in the crash.

Clifton Perry, colored elevator operator, also died yesterday.

Mrs. Richard Hoskins, whose three daughters are seriously injured in a hospital, succumbed late Saturday.

SULPHUR IS BEST TO CLEAR UP UGLY, BROKEN OUT SKIN

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.

Mentho-Sulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment or disfigurement. A little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream.—Advertisement.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten your hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

BERNHARDT IS NEARING END

GREATEST ACTRESS SINKING RAPIDLY FROM DISEASE.

Delirium Comes Upon Her Once More and She Goes Thru Classic Roles Which She Has Made Famous.

PARIS, March 26.—As Sarah Bernhardt lay unconscious at the point of death today, six employes of the motion picture company for which she was working when she was stricken, arrived at the house.

They carried into the living room framework for scenery of the film play, declaring the picture must be completed immediately, even if Bernhardt died.

PARIS, March 26.—A priest arrived at the residence of Sarah Bernhardt this afternoon to administer the last sacraments.

The condition of Bernhardt was described as extremely low at 3 p. m. She was crying for air.

PARIS, March 26.—Mme. Sarah Bernhardt sank rapidly today, after appearing to recover somewhat Sunday from uremic poison that has been sapping her life.

At 1 p. m. Bernhardt's condition was becoming steadily worse. She was unconscious and doctors were injecting camphor.

Shortly after 10 a. m. the great tragedienne was in a comatose condition. She could recognize no one, and Doctor Prevost announced that her condition was extremely serious. Bernhardt's remarkable will alone pulled her thru Sunday, physicians declared, and her hours are admittedly numbered, unless by some miracle the spread of the uremic poisoning, which doctors have been unable to check, ceases.

At dawn today Bernhardt became suddenly worse. Delirium came upon her once more and injections of morphine proved ineffective.

Once more she went thru the classic roles she made famous—"Camille" and "Chantecler." Again she struggled to rise from bed and go downstairs to resume acting for the motion picture camera which still stands awkwardly among garish sets in her living room below.

Lost Three Fortunes.

The tragedy of Bernhardt's passing is emphasized by three accoutrements of the "movies," for which she was forced, at seventy-eight, to act because she was penniless. Three fortunes made during her long lifetime as the world's greatest actress are gone and Bernhardt is near death in comparative poverty.

Her faithful doctors, Prevost and Marot, attempted to quiet her today as the delirium grew worse.

An aged servant of Bernhardt's, with tear-stained face, came to the door for a moment and spoke to the anxious watchers outside:

"Madame is very agitated."

Shortly before 8 a. m. Bernhardt was suffering great pain and was delirious.

Her eyes were open, staring vacantly at the ceiling.

Thoughts On Stage.

Slow gestures from enfeebled lips and worn hands told that the great tragedienne's thoughts were on the stage, where she had hoped to die.

Apparently she saw across the imaginary footlights the upturned faces of audiences she had charmed with the acting that made her known as the greatest tragedienne of all time.

No words came from the trembling lips. Bernhardt was very near death. She tried to say something and a doctor bent his ear to her lips but could not tell what it was.

At half past eleven a physician announced:

"It is almost hopeless."

CAPTURE TWO ESCAPED MEN

Minneapolis Prisoners Taken at Farm House Near St. Cloud, Minn.

ST. CLOUD, Minn., March 26.—Two men who staged a sensational escape from the Hennepin county jail, Minneapolis, Sunday, were captured at a farm house twenty miles from here today.

Sheriff Earle Brown, Minneapolis, the St. Cloud chief of police and deputies made the capture.

The prisoners—Verne Lane and Leo King, escaped by making a rope of blankets. They were found at the home of King's sister.

CAME 3,000 MILES FOR BATH.

LOS ANGELES, March 26.—Nita Naldi, movie actress, came 3,000 miles to get a bath.

Nita, of "Four Horsemen" fame, was working in a picture in New York City. The picture called for a beach scene. The company went out on Long Island, and waited for a moderate day, and it was so cold the management sent the company across the continent.

The day after they got here Nita went down and got her bath in the ocean at Venice.

HARDING WILL FIGHT INSURGENT LEADERS

Plans to Lay Defense Before People of Country in His Old-Fashioned "Stumping" Tour of the Nation.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 26.—President Harding will carry the fight to congressional insurgents who repudiated certain of his policies, according to plans ascertained from a member of the presidential vacation party today.

Sweeping thru the west on an old fashioned "stumping" tour, the president will lay his defense before the electorate, this spokesman says.

The trip will be primarily for the purpose of solidifying public opinion behind the administration rather than a "political appeal." Mr. Harding believes that if the country understands the true facts lying behind his plans and policies it will not support the insurgents who hold the balance of power in the new congress.

The president has told close friends that the supposedly authoritative announcements of Attorney General Daugherty and others don't mean that his decision to run again cannot be changed. Mr. Harding thinks that he is the one to decide finally whether he is to be a candidate in the next election, and that if the insurgents upset the administration program and discredit party leaders, it might be useless or even dangerous for him to seek re-election.

But in view of the "progressive" situation now, Mr. Harding believes the way to beat the insurgents is to carry the fight to them.

LONDON (By Mail).—England is celebrating the 200th anniversary of the death of Sir Christopher Wren, immortal architect of St. Paul's cathedral, by deciding to tear down nineteen of the thirty-two Wren churches still standing. The space is needed for business buildings.

ELEVEN PER CENT TO HEBB STOCKHOLDERS

Bankruptcy Proceedings Closed Saturday—Million in Claims Allowed —Trustee to Get $2,628.20.

Administration of the estate of the Hebb Motor Works, bankrupt, closed Monday when final claims were allowed, a second dividend declared and the compensation of the trustee and his attorney fixed. The company was thrown into bankruptcy November 17, 1920 and the trustee appointed on December 20. Since that time the trustee has handled $249,156 and disbursed $176,894 for operation, dividends and other expenditures, leaving a balance of $72,262.

Claims allowed since the last hearing brought the total to nearly $1,000,000 and a second dividend of 6 per cent was declared Monday, making the total dividend 11 per cent. Joseph E. Rosenfeld of Omaha, the trustee, was allowed $2,628.20 and John M. Stewart $700 for services to Mr. Rosenfeld. Fred Foster is also to be compensated for legal services to the trustee, but this figure was not set Monday, altho it was indicated it would be at least $2,500.

WANT A CAMPFIRE CABIN

Girls Would Build Log Hut in Antelope Park—Have Backing of City Planning Subdivision.

Lincoln campfire girls want to build a log cabin in Antelope park to serve as their headquarters and meeting place, and the city planning subdivision chamber of commerce approves the idea and will meet with the city commission to discuss its feasibility. A recommendation to this effect was part of the park and playground committee report submitted Monday by Dr. G. S. Welch, chairman, and adopted by the subdivision.

It was also recommended that park and school playgrounds be supervised this summer as they were last, it being understood that the city would renew its appropriation of $600 for this purpose. The subdivision was informed that a limited quantity of playground equipment would be installed in Van Dorn park, and that a playground would be available this summer on North Twenty-seventh, between Potter and Fair streets.

A clean-up committee was named to cooperate with other civic agencies in the observation of clean-up and painup week, beginning April 8.

IN DEFENSE OF MR. POLLARD

Home Newspaper Says He Wasn't Elected to Vote for Code Repeal.

Republican City Ranger: Down in Franklin county a bunch of democrats and near-democrats signed an article condemning Representative Pollard and sent it to the state papers. for his stand on the Bryan bills and for a public expression that rapped the governor pretty hard. They accused him of treachery to his constituents and a few other things. Mr. Pollard did not pledge himself to vote to repeal the code nor do we think the people of Franklin county expect him to line up with the democratic governor for anything he asked. We were privileged to vote for Mr. Pollard and to give him the editorial support of a newspaper we were temporarily in charge of, but we didn't expect him to vote to repeal the code, nor do we think hundreds of Franklin county voters expected him to do so, unless in his judgment it was the best thing to do. The people wanted relief from the burdensome taxes but they didn't givadam how it was done. Repeal the code if necessary; amend if it that is better, but they didn't and don't now expect him to support anything Bryan asks for regardless, even if that gentleman was elected by a big majority. We are for the Bryan bills if they will afford the relief the people want and are the best that have been proposed, but if there are other plans just as good or better, then that is what we want, and we believe that Representative Pollard and Hardin and the republican majority will do what they think is best. Everybody knows that it is a Bryan trait to ride roughshod over any and all opposition on the theory that their way is the only right way. When it comes to playing politics we have an idea that the republican majority in the legislature hasn't anything on Governor Bryan.

ORR ANSWERS MR. JACOBSON

BUREAU OF SECURITIES CHIEF PUTS OUT LITERATURE.

Introducer of Bill to Knock Out Blue Sky Department Sees an Attempt to Perpetuate That Activity.

Representative Orr, author of the bill to knock the props from under the blue sky department, came back Monday afternoon at John Jacobson, chief of the bureau of securities. Mr. Jacobson caused to be circulated on the state's stationary a letter in which he sets forth that if the Orr bill is to become a law, certain laws governing corporations must be amended.

The bureau chief says that the objects of the Orr bill, as reported by the press, are not accomplished by abolishing thebureau of securities.

"Mr. Jacobson belongs to a national organization whose apparent purpose is to perpetuate blue sky departments," said Mr. Orr. "His statements are misleading. Apparently he has not read my bill. This measure in no way weakens or affects laws governing corporations."

Mr. Jacobson's letter in full:

"To the members of the house of representatives: Do you know that all the 'corporation permits' issued within the knowledge of the bureau of securities are issued by the secretary of state without the approval, consent or authority of the bureau of securities?

"Do you know that in order to remedy the situation outlined by Speaker Mathers in his address in support of the Orr bill, as reported by the press, and prohibit such stock promotion schemes it will be necessary to amend the law government the insurance department and that exactly the same thing could occur even tho the bureau of securities were abolished, that the securities of insurance companies are and always have been exempt from the provision of the Blue Sky law and the bureau of securities?

"Do you know that the bureau of securities does not issue corporation permits, that under the law corporations complying with the requirements of the department are issued authorization orders which are prohibited by law from being exhibited outside of the office of the corporation receiving them except the use of same as evidence before a court, and that no such thing as a license is issued to stock salesmen by the bureau of securities?

"Do you know that the objects of the Orr bill, as repeatedly reported by the press, are not accomplished by abolishing the bureau of securities, that to accomplish these purposes it would be necessary to prohibit the issuance of corporation permits by the secretary of state and to amend the laws governing the sale of securities under other state departments over which the bureau of securities has no jurisdiction."

GOVERNOR DROPS A WORD FOR THE WISE

Some Indeterminate Appointees Are Not Confining Their Duties to Administrative Work.

Governor Bryan names no names but he does say that when he gave an indeterminate sentence to persons as head of code departments he imposed one condition, namely, towit, that they should confine their activities to their administrative work; but that for the past three or four weeks there has been so much disturbance among his staff that some have become interested in legislation whose purpose is to enable these indeterminates to hold their official positions.

"I therefore felt it necessary to give these departments some attention and to ask appointees to confine their work to administrative work."

Governor Bryan is feeling well pleased with himself for having selected for deputy secretaries of code departments men who have had years of training in state office, men who are competent to take right hold where others left off.

The governor is trying, he said, to harmonize conflicting statements which he says have come from code departments. He would not admit that he was displeased with Former Secretary Johnson of the department of public works for giving him one financial statement and giving the legislative committee another set of figures. He would not say the two reports or either of them was wrong.

"They do not bring the same result," was as far as he would venture.

required to reduce their prices accordingly.

Mr. Goodhue is a man that the capitol commission went to great pains to select to advise them in protecting the state against the thing that has happened; and if nothing else was brought out before the legislative investigating committee than the findings of the capitol commission. that alone is sufficient to show that Mr. Goodhue is either grossly negligent or grossly incompetent, or both, and the matter of stone is only one of the ten charges that I filed against Mr. Goodhue. Some of the charges, as far as compelling the state to pay an excess price for the material is even more important than the stone. These matters are all being heard before a joint committee of both houses of the legislature; and I believe they will make their findings entirely on the evidence submitted and will not be guided by any newspaper who attempts to shape the mind of the public for them. I hope that you will allow this committee to proceed with its work without attempting to influence its decision. However, if you are not willing to do this, I challenge you now to take up the findings of the capitol commission, item by item, and show where Mr. Goodhue was vindicated of any of the charges I made.

FUNERAL OF ORRIN A. COOPER

Many Attend Obsequies of Prominent Humboldt Man.

HUMBOLDT, Neb., March 26.—The funeral of the late Orrin A. Cooper, was held at 2 o'clock Sunday. The services were held at the First Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Cooper was a member and one of the trustees of the church. The church, at present not having a resident pastor, Rev. John V. Bandy pastor of the Methodist church conducted the funeral service assisted by Rev B. H. Dawson of the Christian church.

Friends and business acquaintances from Falls City, Table Rock and other surrounding towns were present at the funeral. There were fifteen of the regular force of employes of the Cooper Milling company attended in a body. The two sons of Mr. Cooper, Guy L. of this city and Cary of Elcentro, Calif., and one daughter, Mrs. Ena Seaberry of Omaha, were present. Mrs. Eva Stanley, the other daughter, now at Lima, Peru, South America, with her husband who is in the government service at that point, could not be present. Humboldt lodge No. 40 A. F. and A. M. escorted the funeral procession to the church and took chrarge after the services and performed the last rites at the cemetery in conformity to the ritual of the Masonic fraternity.

ON COAST FOR EASTER

Nebraska University Men May Witness Great Spectacle on Mount Rubidoux.

The twenty University of Nebraska men in the track team headed for the west will spend Easter Sunday in Los Angeles, and if plans of the Los Angeles alumni are carried out may be taken to Riverside for the sunrise service on Mount Rubidoux Easter morning. Mrs. J. M. McVicker of Lincoln was present for the service two years ago and recalls the details vividly. She says no words can picture its impressiveness. The service is simple. Except for Marcella Craft, who has sung each year since the inauguration of the Easter service by the Mission inn people for their own guests, the singers were the folk of Riverside. In the beginning one hundred men and women climbed the hill on foot or horseback to take part at sunrise in a simple religious service. Last year a throng of ... was drawn by railway or motor car from miles around. Tourists came from all parts of the world. The same cornetist has played "The Holy City" as a preliminary notice that the service is to begin and all traffic must stop. The sight of the thousands on the mountain top, perched on every point and rock and pinnacle, with the dawn growing pinker and more rosy behind the high eastern mountains while the figure of singer or speaker becomes more sharply silhouetted is said to create a spirit of the greatest reverence and awe.

AUBURN CLOTHING STOCK DESTROYED

Interior of Store a Mass of Flames When Fire Department Reaches Early Morning Blaze.

AUBURN, Neb., March 26—An early morning blaze virtually destroyed the stock of the Auburn Clothing company on the west side of court house square

A party of men in the club rooms over the room occupied by the Auburn Clothing company smelled smoke and discovered the store was on fire about 1:30 a. m. The fire started in the rear of the store near the pressing and cleaning department and rapidly swept toward the front of the room By the time the fire department reached the scene the interior of the store was a mass of flames

The entier stock of hats, caps and clothing was destroyed and the ends of the boxes of shoes and men's furnishings wer burned.

E. Krause, the proprietor, said he had just received a large shipment of spring goods which had not yet been insured. The loss is estimated at about $7,500, partly covered by insurance.

CHARLES HADDEN ARRESTED

Another Employe of University Cleaners Held on Liquor Conspiracy Charge.

Charles Hadden, presser at the nUiversity Cleaners, gave bond in the sum of $1,000 Monday when arraigned before United States Commissioner Whitmore on a charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act. Hadden was named in the same information on which W. C. Stedniz another employe of the same establishment, was arrested last week, and they are said by officers to be implicated with Blaine R. Hunt, one of the proprietors, and Harry L. Babcock, in bringing liquor from Omaha. Babcock and Hunt were arrested about ten days ago at the Burlington station while loading a cargo of contraband into Babcock's Hudson car, which is now in possession of the government.

WALLS OF CAPITOL ARE STILL STANDING

In Regard to Damages to Contractor the Commission Claims High, Low, Jack and the Game.

Governor Bryan, chairman of the capitol commission, said it is his understanding that the few blocks of stone which are to be removed from the capitol walls will remain in place until new stones are sawed and milled and received on the capitol grounds. Each stone in the walls is numbered and if one proves to have been defaced by tools or in any way spoiled it can be taken out. The governor said he had been told any individual stone can be taken out of the wall without removing those above it, but others are of the opinion removal can be had only when stones above have been lifted out of place.

In regard to resumption of the laying of stone the governor said this would take place as soon as the resolution adopted by the board is served upon the contractor. He assumed this notice might be transmitted by the secretary of the commission to the architect, altho the commission itself is directly in authority. The governor said the order of the commission ought to be transmitted immediately.

W. H. Thompson, a member of the commission was asked if the contractor would file a claim for damages arising from the order of the board directing him to stop laying stone. Mr. Thompson said the capitol commission would probably take the position that no harm had come to the contractor by stoppage of work during March.

"The commission may be like the man who always claimed he was entitled to count high, low, jack and the game and then waited for the other fellow to present a set off claim if he could," said Mr. Thompson.

Governor Bryan held a conference with Mr. Thompson, Mr Hardy and Mr. Johnson at noon Monday to consider the appointment of a committee to take up with the Burlington road an adjustment of freight charges and reimbursement of the capitol commission at the rate of $2 or $2 50 a car for freight for the capitol hauled over the Haitch Street railway. This is the railway which the capitol commission built to connect with the Burlington road at an expense of about $20,000 in the hope that it would more than pay for the investment in reduced transportation.

At the time the line was built it was believed the state could construct it with less damage to the feelings of the property owners than if the Burlington railroad should build it. The matter of a deduction on freight or switching charges has never been adjusted by the commission and the railroad company.

Theater Damaged.

FRANKLIN, Neb., March 26.—A fire damaged the Rex theater and slightly damaged The Fashion shop. In fighting the fire the F. G. Hutchins Furniture store was slightly damaged. The blaze was caused by the ignition of the film in the machine. Mrs. Phil Davis, who was operating the machine at the time of the accident barely escaped with her life by jumping from the booth window. The local fire department got the blaze under control after an hours hard fighting. The owner, H. Daddow was at home when the accident occured. He estimated the loss at $1,000. The Fashion loss was estimated at $150. Neither of the damaged places carried much insurance.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Advertisement.

CUT IN RATE ON POTATOES

KEARNEY DISTRICT BENEFITED BY LOW SCHEDULE FOR SEED.

Northwestern Nebraska Will Henceforth Be Able to Supply Wants at Much Less Charge for Freight Carrying.

Orders were issued Monday by the state railway commission directing the Union Pacific, Burlington and Northwestern railroads to put into effect greatly reduced rates on the hauling of seed potatoes from the northwestern part of the state to the Kearney potato growing districts.

The reduction will amount to 10 and 15cents a hundred from Glen and Crawford, which are big seed potato shipping points, to stations, along the Union Pacific between Gibbon and North Platte, and up to 20 cents a hundred from Harrison, another seed shipping center.

Hitherto the seed men have been doing business in the Kearney district under a handicap. If they shipped over the three railroads, the only way open to them, they paid the sum of three local hauls, which ran the cost up. The matter was lately taken up with the railroads by the commission, and a composition of it made without any formal hearing.

The reduction in rates will run up into around seventy-two dollars a car. Northwestern Nebraska is selling a great amount of seed potatoes to various parts of the country. Because of soil and climatic conditions that section is specially adapted for arising hardy seed. This brings a premium on the market, and the demand for the Nebraska seed is spreading in other states. This rate reduction enables Nebraska growers elsewhere in the state to get Nebraska seed of the highest type.

ARRAIGN MANY PARKERS

Eleven Autoists Dismissed With Warning to Park Machines Headed With Traffic.

Charges against eleven autoists that they violated parking ordinances by leaving their machines headed in the wrong direction to the curb were dismissed Monday morning by Police Judge Chappell. Each was given a copy of the city ordinances and told that hereafter fines would be imposed for this offense. The judge made it plain that every auto driver must park his car so that it will be headed with the traffic and that this ordinance applies to the residence district of the city as well as to the business section.

Those whose cases were dismissed include: J. L. Phiney, 1644 F; William R. Perrin, 434 North Twenty-sixth; Mrs. W. H. Browne, 2757 Calumet Court; Mrs. H. A. Evans, 1800 C; Mrs. B. O. Campbell, 1971 Sewell; Mrs. R. S. Campbell, 1535 South Twenty-second; C. F. Helm, 1718 South Twenty-second; Mrs. M. Deutsch, 2108 South Twenty-fourth; Mrs. E. L. Thornton, 1546 South Twenty-second; Peter Hanson, 1601 South Twenty-second; Mrs. A. J. Riley, 1634 D. Mrs. Harvey Rathbone was fined $1 and costs when she entered a plea to a charge of violating the two-hour parking ordinance. Harvey Kroepper, 1441 G, was arraigned on a charge of parking an auto too near a fire hydrant. He was dismissed with a warning. Bert Salyas, who appeared on a charge of driving an auto on a paper number, was dismissed when he produced evidence to clear himself. Fred Playter, 3310 Washington, pleaded guilty and was fined $1 and costs for parking an auto on a white line. Ralph Lahr, 1639 L, pleaded innocence to a similar charge and the case was continued. R. L. McGraw, 2101 Calvert, will face Judge Chappell at 9 a. m. Tuesday on a charge of parking his machine at a white curb.

P. H. Ohlheiser, 1025 South Fifteenth, was fined $5 and costs when he pleaded guilty to passing another auto on an intersection. Charges against A. H. Gutberlet, 2534 A, that he violated the two-hour parking ordinance, were dismissed. Frank Johnson, 1503 H, and F. A. Franks, 2731 Pear, were each fined $1 and costs for parking their autos in alleys.

JUDGE CLEMENTS VERY ILL

Has Undergone One Operation at a Hospital, and Dr. D. C. Hilton Forecasts Another.

District Judge Elliot J. Clements, who has not been on duty at the court house since the first part of last week, is said by Dr. David C. Hilton to be suffering from a serious illness at St. Elizabeth's hospital. A recent siege of something like influenza, which kept the judge away from work about two weeks recently, possibly weakened him and helped to bring on the malady.

Judge Clements attended the funeral of Thomas J. Doyle last Saturday as an honorary pall bearer, and that afternoon was taken to the hospital, where he was immediately operated upon. Doctor Hilton said he underwent the first operation well, but that another will probably be necessary to restore the judge to better health. He said it may be several weeks before Judge Clements will be able to leave the hospital.

OPEN M. SCHWARTZ CASE

Sues Wittstruck Brothers for a Fall Into the Cellar of Their Store Last November.

Trial of the $5,000 damage case of Morris Schwartz against Carl F. Wittstruck and his brother, Robert A. Wittstruck, was begun Monday morning before District Judge Shepherd.

Mr. Schwartz alleges in his petition that November 8, last, he entered the store operated by the defendants at 2146-2148 Vine street, and fell thru a trap door into the store cellar, sustaining permanent injuries which will keep him from working at his trade, or at any heavy work, indefinitely. It is charged that the defendants were negligent in not warning him that the door was open, or in not surrounding it with a railing.

[illegible]

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: In reply to the raking I got from Billy last Saturday I rise to remark that I, too, am for the modern girl. I like 'em modern, 98 per cent proof; I want to see the 1923 1-2, up to the minute, twelve cylinder, 400 horsepower girl with a career of freedom and independence before her.

Did I say something about bobbed hair? I really don't object to abbreviated adornment of that kind. What I dislike is bobbed brains. I don't object to a tint of rouge, if applied sensibly; what I abhor is a painter nature —an attempt on the part of a girl to appear to be something which she is not.

I gained my impression of a "flapper" by watching those girls who most loudly and consistently assert that they are flappers,—and I found that bobbed hair and abbreviated brains, painted faces and camouflaged characters often, very often, go together—altho, mind you Billy, I don't say always.

Billy is laboring under a delusion if she imagines it makes a girl "modern" to paint, powder, bob her hair, pencil her lips and eyebrows and bead her lashes.

If Billy had lived in the days of '75, as neither she nor I did, she would have found the girls of that decade going in for toothpick waists, fainting every ten minutes, hoop skirts and whatnot. Before that she would have found them powdering their hair instead of their noses, and a century before that she would have found them wearing steel corsets because no cloth fabric was stout enough to stand the terrific strain. In China the girls are seen with feet bound and deformed. In Africa they push bones thru thru their noses and ears and otherwise deform themselves. There is nothing modern in a girl's desire to attract attention by making herself appear to be something other than what she is. The idea is as old as Cain's wife. It shows that its victim is anything but modern in her methods.

The modern girl, Billy-rattlebox, is sufficient unto herself. She knows that the trend of modernity is toward simplicity and sincerity. She is able to make a living for herself if her husband dies, or never materializes. She takes the body and hair and face and brains God gave her, and if she doesn't like them she improves them —but not by camouflage.

If Billy would travel, as some have, into the wilds of Paris or New York or London, she would find a million of these girls with so-called modern ideas of freedom, and so on, but Billy wouldn't touch them, even with tongs, nor look at them, if she could help it, thru a mirror.

Lincoln is the kind of "spinster" who is looking for a girl cast in the same character as his own purposeful, steady, honest and sincere mother was, sixty years ago. The girl's the thing, whether she lived in '75 or '23.

And Lincoln will stay "spinster" too, Billy, and bequeath his bank account to a home for broken-down flappers before he will marry an artificial-minded, shimmy-dancing, plucked-eyebrows, stencil-lipped, war-painted mate-to-a-snuggle-puppy jazz-hound girl, (God save the name) with a flapping mind.

Would Billy marry a man who rouged, plucked his brows, marcelled his hair and dyed his lips? Didn't you say something, Billy, about sauce for geese and ganders?—Lincoln.

A. I guess I'd better stay out of this discussion. Billy and Lincoln appear pretty well able to speak for themselves.

Dear Mary Gordon: What would you do if you were engaged to marry a boy and after you had been engaged for several weeks, you didn't hear from him. Has been almost a month now. Such is the case of a friend of mine. They live in different towns and knew each other several years before they became engaged. He in lover life fashion—said he loved her so much etc. It seems to me that even a happy-go-lucky boy of today won't ask a girl to marry him, if he didn't love her. There is nothing to stand in either of their way.

A. I'd think he was very inconsiderate, to say the least. But when a man is interested in his work, busy and happy, a month passes quickly and perhaps he really does not realize how long it has been since he wrote his fiancee. I think I'd call him by long distance and ask him if he had been kidnaped or killed or something. Then I'd reverse the call.

Dear Mary Gordon: I wrote you about three weeks ago and I'm sure you printed my letter, I saw a reference to it in another letter only a few days ago. I didn't see your answer to my letter and if it is possible I'd like to have you tell me when Mickie's letter appeared.

I've been having quite a bit of grief lately, mostly over the fact that the roads have been so bad the last two weeks that my latest sweetheart can't come and see me. It makes me rather doubt whether he really loves me. Don't you think he'd walk twelve miles to see me if he did?

Maybe I'm funny but I've been going with the same semi-wild crowd for the last three years, that is since I got over my bashfulness, and I can't seem to agree with them nor they with me. They still like me altho I usually have a quarrel or fight every time I go with them. There really isn't another single crowd I could go with unless it is with a few of the girls who don't have dates and don't comb their hair in the latest fashion. They don't seem to want me very badly anyhow.

Why does nearly every boy I ever go with either make fun of my eyes or call them vampy eyes or worse, yet, tell me my eyes are simply wonderful? I possess common brown eyes and I certainly don't try to use them for anything but their legitimate purpose, but it never fails to be one of the first things boys mention. Some of them even go so far as to say that my eyes told them they could do certain things that I told them they could not. Maybe this is the reason I don't make boys behave without getting into a regular fight and getting hardboiled.

How can I make my eyes behave if they're to blame? I'm writing this dope to you because I like you and I don't think you'll laugh at me as some of my girl friends do. Yours. Mickie.

P. S. I just about forgot the most important question of all. Why will a boy deliberately lie about a girl to his boy friends? I was told that a certain boy said I was actually wicked and that he knew from experience. I am not that sort and I think most everyone knows it and yet people would rather believe bad than good about a person, don't you think? The only reason he'd tell such a thing is that once he tried to get a little rough and I slapped him. Of course he became angry and that might have led him to lie about me. I hate it awfully tho what should I do, if anything? Mickie.

A. No, I wouldn't laugh at your woes over your "vampy" eyes, Mickie. I've known other girls who have had just that trouble. One was a particular friend of mine. When she smiled or looked at one, they had a plain "come hither" expression. She couldn't help it and the men could'nt help coming her way, either. I guess there's nothing you can do about it, except to make the best of it.

Your letter was published in the Evening Journal of March 1. Sorry you missed it.

The boy who spread the false tale about you is surely contemptible. I believe you are strong enough to ignore it, tho, since those who know you realize that it couldn't be true and those who don't could soon find out.

Dear Mary Gordon. I am engaged to a young man who has proven untrue and I do not care to marry him now. Our wedding invitations have been sent and all the arrangements are made. What shall I do? How can I recall or cancel the invitations Heartbroken.

A. If you have sent out a number of invitations and the wedding was to take place soon, you should send a notice to the newspapers of the breaking of the engagement. If there were few invited, you could call them by 'phone for the notification.

When two tumblers get stuck together, separate them by pouring cold water into the inner one, and then pour fairly hot water on the outer one. The heat expands the outer glass and they soon separate.

To prevent white fabrics such as silk evening gowns, old lace or shawls from turning yellow, when they have to be stored away for some time, sprinkle pieces of white wax freely between all folds.

Sprinkle a few tablespoons of salt over the kitchen fire after it is made up and it will keep going for hours without requiring any attention.

If only a few drops of onion juice are required for flavoring, cut a slice from the root end of the onion and press it against a grater with a rotary movement.

WHAT'S BROKEN?

(By Walter Wellman.)

Something is badly broken. You are to cut out the peices along the dotted lines, and then paste them together on a stiff pieve of cardboard and find out what it is that is broken.

DR. JACOBS GOES ON TRIAL

Camp Kearney Captain Charged With Murdering Fritzi Mann, Young Dancer.

SAN DIEGO Cal., March 26.—Dr. Louis L. Jacobs, Camp Kearney health service captain, accused of the murder of Fritzi Mann, twenty-year-old dancer whose lingerie-clad body was found in the surf north of La Jolla January 15, went on trial today in Judge S. M. Marsh's court.

The courtroom was crowded as new and senasational evidence found by the county grand jury is expected to be disclosed.

Empanelling of a jury is expected to take until Tuesday night.

TRIBUTE TO C. M. GRUENTHER

Hundreds Attend Funeral of Prominent Nebraskan.

OMAHA, Neb., March 26.—"He knew the meaning of citizenship. He was a typical Christian and a devoted friend."

With these words, Archbishop J. J. Harty yesterday afternoon summed up the attributes of Christian M. Gruenther in the funeral sermon at St. Cecelia's cathedral.

Hundred gathered for the last rites. The great edific was crowdd.

Former Senator G. M. Hitchcock, Governor Charles W. Bryan, Congressman A. C. Shallenberger and Edgar Howard, Chief Justice A. M. Morrissey, Preiident D. P. Hogan of the Federtl Land bank, and many other leaders in official and business life of the state and the communities where Mr. Gruenther had lived, mourned with the relatives and friends. Though Mr. Gruenther had been in Omaha but four years, he had become in that short time a part of the community and a recognized force in its public activities. He was secretary of the federal land bank and director of the Metropolitan Utilities district.

The Rev. George H. Smiskol officiated at the cathedral in the simple service of absolution of the dead, assisted by the Rev. Stephen Dowd of the Church of Our Lady of the Lourdes, and the Rev. Anthony Kruthe of St. Peter's church.

The casket bore no floral token as the last offices were said. A wealth of offerings of this kind had been sent to the home, coming from friends and organizations, both officials and civil in which Mr. Gruenther had been active.

The boys' sanctuary choir and the girl's junior choir, each of thirty voices chanted the service. Dr. R. Mills Silby was at the organ.

Many of Mr. Gruenther's old friends from Platte Center attended. Among them were J. A. Hauser, Mr. and Mrs. John Moffet, M. C. Odgard, James Hennessy, John Cooney, Roy Macken, Mrs. Thomas Gleason, Misses Annie and Minnie Murphy, Mrs. Kate Mark, Mrs. E. J. Higgins, Misses Angela and Mary Cronin, Mrs. F. G. Reily.

RADIO IN THE HOME

BY HENRY M. NEELY.

Broadcasting Grand Opera.

Probably nothing that has happened in radio during the entire past season has caused quite so much favorable comment as the broadcasting of grand opera performances by Station KYW, in Chicago. Stations in other cities would undoubtedly have followed suit if it had been possible, but in the case of the Eastern cities, at least, contracts of artists with talking machine companies have made it impossible for them to perform over the radio.

Except for the Chicago season, the only other season of grand opera that I know of was given just recently by Station WIP, in Philadelphia, of which I happen to be director. We were able to do this because a company came from Europe to give a season of Wagnerian operas in several cities, and they were not in any way hampered by contracts. Consequently it was possible for us to make arrangements with them to broadcast three of their performances, and it was as interesting an experience as a radio man could go thru.

Radio listeners have no idea of the amount of forethought and careful planning necessary for broadcsting a performance of this kind. It seems to be the general impression among amateurs that when an event is broadcast from a concert hall or an auditorium over land wires, and thence from a radio station, all that is necessary is to connect an ordinary telephone and let the sound go thru that.

But this is by no means possible. Telephone conversations are accommanied in ordinary practice by many noises on the line, and these noises, if transferred to a radio transmitting set, would be amplified to such an extent that the music and speech would be totally ruined when received by radio.

In all such installations as this it is necessary to place virtually an entire transmitting set in the hall or the auditorium where the performance is being given. This transmitting set does not send out signals over an aerial but does send the signals over the land lines. It is necessary to lease two pair of land lines for the transmission and two pair for the control operator. Those duplicates are necessary in case one pair breaks down and it is necessary to plug in at once on the spare.

The grand opera performances of which I speak, were given in the Metropolitan Opera house in Philadelphia and this building is so vast in its proportions that no one microphone could possible be adequate to transmit all of the opera and the orchestra as well. It was necessary for us to place eight separate and distinct microphones in various parts of the stage and the orchestra pit and the house in order to be sure to catch any sound that was made by musicians or singers, no matter where they might be stationed.

All of these microphones were connected by cable to the transmitting set in a special control room behind the scenes, and this transmittiagn set was also connected by a special telephone line to a box in the center of the balcony, where several men were posted to keep the operators in the control room informed of everything that was going on.

Essentially, it was much like artillery fire control in modern warfare. When a singer came down the stage and started to sing, the man at the telephone in the box would phone down to the control room, "Microphone No. 2."

Then, as the artist continued to sing and perhaps walk across the stage a little distance, as he was walking the man in the box would phone down, "Get ready for No. 3; switch." As the man walked still farther along the stage, the man in the box would phone into the control room, "Get ready for No. 4; switch."

In this way the microphone nearest the singer was always kept in operation and the actions and movements of the artists were followed from one side of the stage to the other, on into the backand even behind the scenes.

When the orchestra was the most important part of the music, one of the microphones on the footlights would be connected, if it was soft music; or, if it was sufficiently loud, the microphone hung from the ceiling in the very center of the house would be connected.

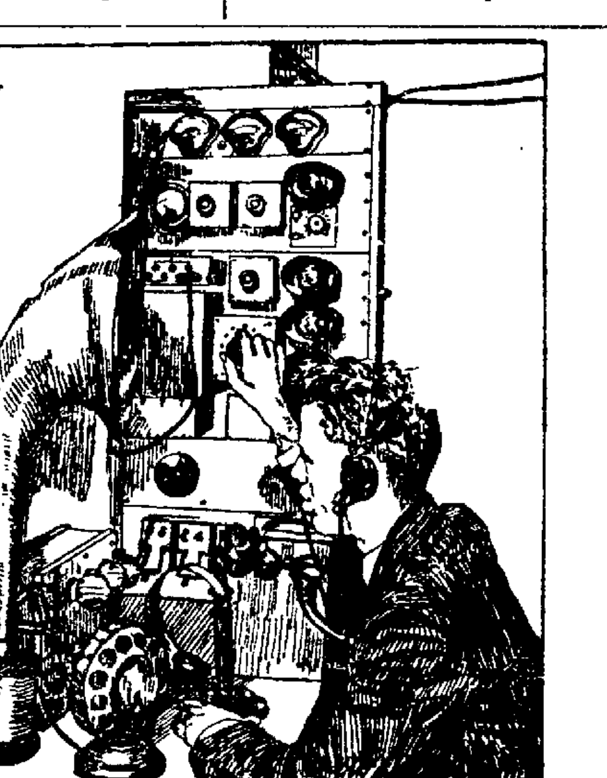

This microscope in the center of the house also was responsible for some of the most thrilling moments that the radio listeners-in had. This was not during the music, but at the end of the acts when the storm of applause broke forth thru the seated audience. This applause was sent out over the radio and all of the cries of bravo, hurrah and encore went with it.

Many of the thousands of letters which were received by station WIP after these three operas spoke about the thrill that came to the listeners in when the applause broke forth and how many of them involuntarily started to clap themselves in their own homes.

During the intermission the story of the opera and an explanation of all that was going on were given by the writer from the control room.

It will be seen from this that the broadcasting of grand opera is not by any means the simple matter of taking an ordinary telephone off the hook and letting the sound go out over the phone wires.

(Copyright, 1923 Public Ledger Co.)

This shows the operator in a control room during the broadcasting of a grand opera, telling the story of the opera in front of the microphone between the acts.

Watch for This, Benedicts.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, March 26.—Prices were unchanged to lower on a dull market at the opening of the Chicago board of trade today.

After opening unchanged for selling developed in wheat due to an irregular Liverpool market. Reports from the southwest indicated further precipitation imminent.

Corn was irregular. Traders showed an inclination to hesitate pending confirmation of reports that the federal reserve board contemplated an advance in discount rates. Feeder and export demands were light.

Oats was unchanged to higher on a slow market.

Provisions were weak to lower.

Grain Market Opinions.

Thomson McKinnon: We do not expect immediately lower prices despite the rather weak cash situation.

J. E. Bennett & Co.: Conditions hardly warrant any serious decline.

Logan & Bryan: The market should be technically healthier after this reaction.

Bartlett Frazer & Co.: We expect enlarged buying power on any further decline.

Stein-Alstrin: Some recovery may follow this reaction but pressure will doubtless increase on advances.

Harris-Winthrop & Co.: The market lacked support.

Lamson Bros. & Co.: Lack of speculative interest is noted.

Hulburd-Warren & Chandler: We look for a further decline in wheat and believe it will affect other grains adversely.

E. Lowitz & Co.: Lower levels are possible.—Lamson.

The market continued slow and dull thruout the morning and at noon prices were fractionally lower.

May wheat led in the weakness. Free selling appeared. Southwestern advices were mixed. Eastern Kansas reported favorable weather while the western section of the state reported some damage from high winds Sunday.

With a heavy cash demand for corn, that grain held steady.

Oats remained unchanged and steady.

Journal of Commerce Report.

CHICAGO, March 26.—More wheat is expected to be brought here from outside points because stocks here insufficient and current requirement provide an outlook on a firm basis for ordinary receipts. The accumulation of supplies here for delivery on May contracts, however, is being done at a loss. Until the May issue is cleared the market is likely to continue nervous and erratic.—Lamson.

Liverpool Grain.

LIVERPOOL, March 26.—Weekly shipments of grain from No-America. Wheat, 7,682,000; Corn 736,000. Barley 167,000, Oats, 450,000. Rye, 454,000. Of the above total flour cleared 1,347,000 bushels.

Weekly world shipments: Wheat and flour, 13,137,000. Corn, 1,653,000. Oats, 730,000.—Lamson.

New York Liberty Bonds.

NEW YORK, March 26.—U. S. liberty bonds were quoted here today as follows: 3½'s, $101; first 4¼'s, $97.16; second 4¼'s, $97.05; third 4¼'s, $98.06; fourth 4¼'s, $97.12.

Foreign Exchange Market.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Foreign exchange opened lower. Sterling, $4.68¾; francs, .0638½; lire, .0488; marks, 20,833 to the dollar.

Indianapolis Livestock Market.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 26.—Hogs—Receipts, 5,000; market 5@10c higher, best heavies $8.50@8.60, medium mixed, $8.60@8.70; common choice, $8.70@8.75; bulk of sales $8.55@8.70.

Cattle—Receipts, 800; market steady; steers, $7.75@9.25; cows and heifers, $6.00@9.00.

Sheep—Receipts, 50; market, steady; top, $5.50.

St. Paul Livestock Market.

ST. PAUL, March 26.—Cattle—Receipts, 2,500; market generally steady to strong.

Calves—Receipts, 1,300; market 50 off.

Hogs—Receipts, 10,500; market very slow, steady to 10c lower, top $7.90, bulk, $7.75@7.90.

Sheep—Receipts, 1,100; market, about steady.

Stock Market Opinions.

Post & Flagg: The market is not likely to have more than a moderate reaction.

Logan & Bryan: The time is now opportune for reducing long lines.

Harris-Winthrop & Co.: Further irregularity is likely to occur.

Clark-Childs & Co.: The federal reserve conference is likely to be productive of constructive developments.

Thomson-McKinnon: It is only by a sale that you can actually enjoy your profits.

Houseman: We have the opinion that those who are counting up Balkan conference to hurl high explosive at the optimists may find themselves mistaken. We expect irregularity awaiting announcement that may come from Washington and also on weakness early this week, the market can be bought.

Broaden, Wall: Speculative Wall street will start the new week today with some hesitancy due to the scheduled move of the federal reserve board. It would not surprise the financial district if another warning against inflation were given the nation. Heads of the institution are determined to prevent a repetition of the credit expansion which reached its peak in October, 1920. The general stock market is in a strong technical position. The selling interest is unusually large but it is a buying power that must be counted upon.

Simpson: I don't look for much of a setback from present levels and favor purchases on the dips.—Lamson.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Wall street's attention at the start of the new week was turned to the federal reserve conference at Washington, principally because three successive days of declines in the stock market had led to the belief that some admonition might be expected regarding excessive speculation and the prospect of higher money. In the highest banking circles it was felt that no further increase in the rediscount rates was contemplated at present and that any statement issued by the meeting would be reassuring. The belief gave support to pivotal stocks and the lows of last week were not broken in the early dealings. Steel common sold at 106¾, a fractional recovery from Saturday's final.

Opening stock prices: Crucible 50¼, off ½; Baldwin 139¼, off ¼; Pan-American "B" 79½, off ⅛; Sinclair 36¼, off ¼; New York Central 97⅝, up ⅛; General Motors 15, up ¼; Cosden 58, off ¼; Studebaker 121⅝, off ¼; U. S. Steel 106¾, up ¼; American Locomotive, 133½; Pan-American "A" 78½, off ½; Kelly-Springfield 59, off ¼.

Stocks gave a remarkable demonstration of rallying power in the first hour. After a weak opening the general list gathered strength and by 11 a. m. recovery was in full swing thruout the whole market. California Petroleum soared to a record high at 102¾; Beechnut Packing at 84½, and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico at 104¼. Substantial comebacks were staged by most speculative leaders and the whole market showed a greatly improved tone.

U. S. Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Charles E. Marvin, Chief.

Observations taken at 7 a. m. Air pressure reduced to sea level and line drawn thru points of equal pressure. Arrows fly with the wind. ○ clear; ◓ partly cloudy, ● cloudy, Ⓡ rain, Ⓢ snow, Ⓜ report missing.

Weather Conditions.

The area of low pressure noticed Saturday in Montana moved rapidly eastward and was followed by an area of high pressure Sunday. This area of high pressure has moved rapidly also and is central in Kansas today and an area of low pressure is central north of North Dakota. The barometer is high generally in other districts. Fair weather has prevailed generally but some local rains have occurred.

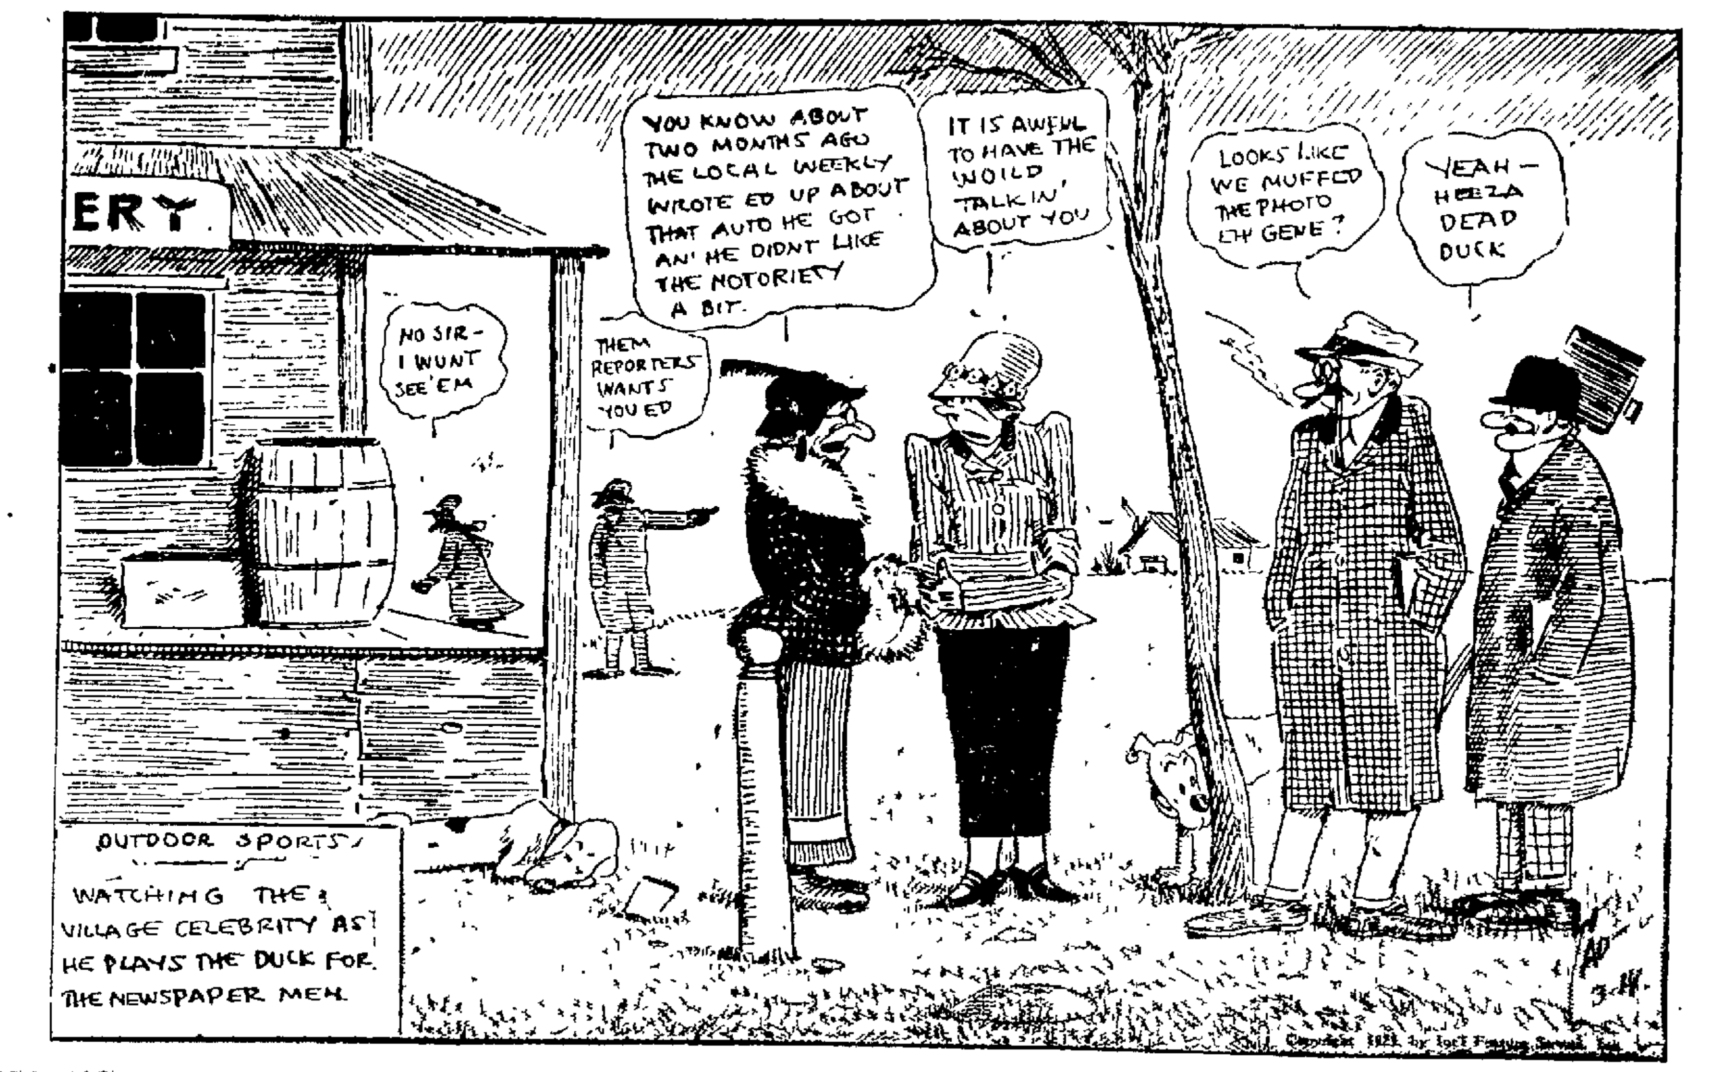

Reduced barometer 30.54 inches.

A High-Toned Duel.

In a character study of John Randolph, the famous Virginian, in Harper's Magazine, Gamaliel Bradford writes:

"On only two occasions, so far as the records go, did Randolph actually appear in the dueling field, and on both his courage was unimpeachable. The first was an affair at college. The second was the historical duel with Henry Clay, whom Randolph had bracketed with President John Quincy Adams as a combination of blackleg and Puritan. Randolph's conduct was perfectly characteristic. He solemnly assured his second beforehand that on no account would he fire at Clay. Then, losing his temper on the ground, he intimated that he had changed his mind. Then his pistol went off too soon. Then, having received Clay's fire through the white-flannel wrapper, which he persisted in wearing—as Sainte-Beuve fought his only duel under an umbrella—he shook hands with his adversary with the utmost cordiality. And the delicious epilogue to the whole thing is furnished by Benton, who gives a detailed account of it: 'It was about the last high-toned duel that I have witnessed and among the highest-toned that I have ever witnessed.'"

Round and Round.

The guest was suffering from too much hospitality. As he sat with his host in a library, whose walls were lined with books he remarked: "Straordinary! Here I've been here the whole evening and only jush notished you've a circulatin' library.—Chicago Daily News.

Slight Error.

It is a current game in the cinema world to invent fables about movie stars, and the latest has it that a young millionaire showed a black eye to a beautiful woman film star, and said reproachfully:

"Why did you knock me down when I kissed you in the conservatory?"

"Forgive me, dear one," the beautiful film star explained, "I thought it was my husband."—London Opinion.

PRICES KEEP ON CLIMBING

Bankers Fearful That Dangerous Situation Being Created by Movement.

The prices of commodities continue to move upward, as is notably seen both in the metals trade and in sugar, cotton and various other essentials. These advances of price are being directly reflected in the stocks of the principal producing companies. Already, certain indications of doubt on the part of business men and bankers are evident with respect to the question whether such price advances, if continued for some time, may not result in creating a dangerous situation by checking demand and thus reacting upon security values.

Whatever may be in store for the future, there is no present prospect of that kind, but, on the contrary, the outlook is good, an dthere is apparently every reason to expect still further enlargement of demand during the current season. In these times, it is hardly worth while to look too far ahead, due to the many conflicting factors which are always at work. What is certain is that the increase of value and output in basic commodities is now attaining proportions that are almost unprecendented, while stocks will feel a corresponding effect unavoidably. How far the movement will go, or what will be the result of it, can, of course, not be definitely asserted.

Hard Life of a Poet.

Meek looking little man, with a bandage round his head, a black eye and sundry scratches on his face, walked into the newspaper office.

"You have some professional humorists among your compositors?" he asked the editor.

The editor gave him a surprised look.

"Do you read your own paper?" the little man continued.

"Sometimes."

"Did you read my poem in your last issue?"

"Well, I'm afraid I didn't," the editor had to admit.

"I thought not. In that poem I put it, 'I love you better than my life.'"

"Quite so; a very neat line."

"Well, one of your compositors put it, 'Ilove you better than my wife,' I'm a married man and my wife read it. Now look at my face."—Chicago News.

MEN AND THINGS

The code issue has been pretty much of a herring across the trail from the beginning. The politicians have magnified its effects and its costs until a considerable number of voters who have no facilities for ascertaining information actually believe it to be responsible for the increase in state taxation. A letter to the Journal the other day by a subscriber ascribed the entire increase in his taxes to the code. The fact that it is largely a fake can easily be shown. The code department appropriations for the last biennium were 5 per cent of the total state taxes, and this included the appropriation of a lot of fees these departments earned and which must first go into the treasury before they can be spent. If Hitchcock had not figured, four years ago, that McKelvie would be his opponent in 1922 and had not at once started to make it impossible for the governor to capitalize the code, we would likely never have heard of it as a political issue.

The state should exercise a stronger supervision over life insurance agents than is now possible under the law. The agents have vainly sought to get legislative consent to a qualifications law that would make it impossible for a company to hire anybody to go out and solicit business. The haunting fear that the agents might form a trust in this way or at least get all the benefits of a trust seems to have kept the legislators from giving the necessity recognition. The life insurance business is manifestly injured when a buyer finds out that an unscrupulous or ignorant agent has misrepresented what he has purchased, and assuredly the state should protect its citizens from just such things being possible.

It is significant that at a time when New Jersey and several other eastern states that have steadfastly refused to enact blue sky laws and have depended for the protection of investors on stringent fraud statutes are turning away from the latter method and taking up the blue sky way, Nebraska is turning in exactly the opposite direction. This state did not have a proper and air-tight blue sky law till the last session because interested legislators had been able to insert jokers in previous enactments. In the last two years it has operated with remarkable efficiency, as the record shows. The legislature apparently is determined to repeal it, but the sins it is laying on the shoulders of blue sky are mostly those committed under the old law and are not chargeable to the present one. What other states are doing sometimes controls the acts of state legislatures, but usually individual or local experiences are the most potent influence.

Random Jottings: We thought there might be a lot in that "an apple a day keeps the doctor away," until we heard that a Lincoln physician had bought an interest in a Nebraska orchard. * * * We read the other day of an elderly man who was a chronic sufferer from some ailment or ailments who, when urged by a friend to try some new remedy he had highly spoken of, said that he would like to oblige, but that as a matter of fact he had so many other recommended medicines to try that he was afraid he wouldn't get around to his for a couple of years. * * * The chaplain of the house is displaying a noble forbearance. Altho plainly discouraged he is still praying for the democrats, despite their recent conduct.

It has long been a truism that the essence of wit and humor is exaggeration. Just as a cartoon is pointless unless it shows things out of proportion so a jest often falls flat because it depends for its success upon its abnormality with respect to fact. Unimaginative people like the English thus gain an undeserved reputation for failing to see a joke. The same rule must prevail with respect to cleverness in writing. The most interesting writer we know of is a book reviewer, a business that seems to lend itself particularly to this sort of talent, yet when we analyze his writings it is evident that he gains this end at the expense of fact; in other words, he exaggerates.

The Penalty.

From Richmond Times-Dispatch: The proud father beamed upon the assembled company as his daughter finished the aria, to prove her voice.

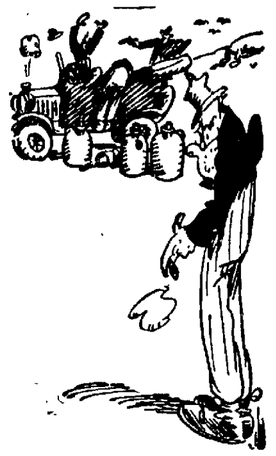

"What," he said, expectantly, "what do you ladies and gentlemen think of my daughter's execution?"

With a shriek of approval, the whole crowd yelled: "We're in favor of it!"

"My boy," admonished he stern parent, "you should take a lesson from the busy bee."

"Bee, Bee?" puzzled the indolent son. "That's the insect that spends all its life storing up honey for the rest of us to eat, isn't it?"—New York Sun.

BRAIN TESTS

(By Sam Loyd.)

Three Minutes to Answer This.

Charlie and Freddie having sent their lingerie, consisting of thirty pieces, to the laundry. Freddie called for the same and explained to the Chinaman that as his part consisted of but one-half of the cuffs and one-third of the collars, it should cost him but 27 cents. As four cuffs cost the same as five collars, who can tell how much Charlie must pay for his portion of the package?

Answer to Saturday's.

In two and one-quarter hours the two cars were in such positions on the roads as to form a right-angled triangle, the hypothenuse of which, the shortest distance between the cars, measured ten miles:

WALT MASON

The Daily Marvel.

The autos ramble to and fro, before the village kirk; I wonder, as I watch them go, what fellow does the work. It seems a constant holiday in this glad world of ours, and all my friends are out at play, like birds among the flowers. No higher purpose may be seen, and more devout desires, than just to burn up gasoline, and wear out rubber tires. Joyriding is the only plan that seems to stick and stay; yet somewhere there must be a man who works eight hours a day. Men hide beneath the glowing stars in costly limousines, or else in small synthetic cars that cost three hundred beans; they're driving in the garish noon and in the gloaming gray, but where is he, the lonesome loon, who works eight hours a day? Sad is his fate, where'er he is; he bends to useful toil, while countless autos past him whiz, and use up gas and oil. Like Tubal Cain he makes a raft of things the people need, and nobly, by his toilsome craft he earns his chickenfeed. And as he dries his sweaty front he cries, in ringing note, "I'll just keep up this wretched stunt till I can buy a boat!"

Another Variation.

A story is told of a well-known Edinburgh organist who was conducting his choir practice, the anthem under treatment being "As Pants the Hart."

The choristers seemed rather short of breath and consequently did not sustain the notes long enough.

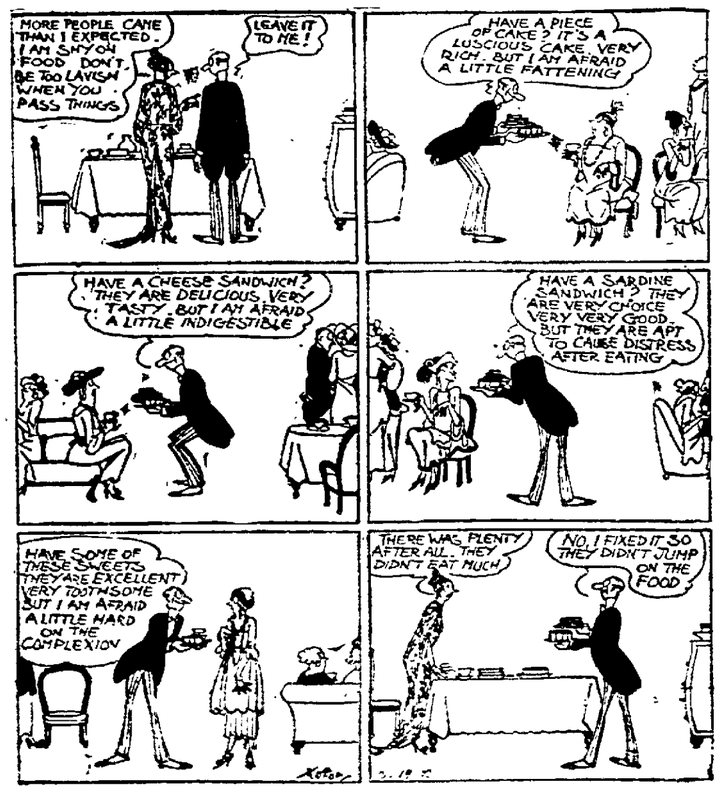

At last when he could stand it no longer the organist called out: "Stop, stop, gentlemen. Your pants are far too short."—Chicago Daily News.
